ANNOTATIONS

On the Book of the Prophet

The ARGUMENT.

BT wo forts of perfons did Ged anciently make known his minde, and will, to his people the fews; by ordinary Ministers, and by extraordinary Messengers. The ordinary Ministers were the Priests, and Levites: bash these, all of one Tribe, the linage of Levi; the former of them, all of one house in that Tribe, the off-spring of Aaron. The extraordinary Messen gets, were the Prophets; so towned, of sortelling sunne events, by divine revelation; men immediately called by God kimsels, and by him immediately inspired. These were of any house, tribe, or prosession, indifferently, as God was pleased to cull, and call. The Prophets, whose monuments we have severally booked in Scripture, are in number fixteen: whereof the four former are called, in regard of the largeness of their prophecies, the greater; the latter twelve, in regard of the shortness of them, the leffer.

Of the four larger, Itaiah, as in place, and rank, so in order of time, is without question, the sirst; and lived also, in likelihood, Some time at least, together with the first of the other twelve : no one of them, whose times are expressed, rising higher then the reign of Jeroboam the second King of Israel; who reigned fifteen years together, with Uzziah King of Judah, in whose reign this our Prophet began his prophetical employment. What Tribe he was of, or of what estate, and profession, before his entrince upon his Office, is uncertain: no mention being made of his pedigree, either here, or else-where; further then his next progenitor. So that what the fewish Doctors tell us, concerning his being of the Tribe of Judah, and of the blond royal; as also of his Fathers being a Prophet, and brother to King Amaziah, are matters of no certainty, having no footing in Scripture. His Sermons, or Prophecies, here recorded, abound with great variety of religious instructions, serious admonitions, Barp reproofs, severe menaces, and comfortable promises. And these all delivered in a stile sutable to the subject matter very lofty, and flately sfull fraught with rhetorical garnifles, & fuch native elegancies, as in other languages cannot eafily, if at all, be expressed. Besides his predictions of Gods judgments to befall his own nation for their sins, partly by the Asyrians, and partly by the Chaldeans, and concerning the utter destruction of the adversaries of Gods people, as well joyntly, as severally; he is most plentiful in foretelling their deliverance from the Babylonian Captivity by Cyrus, whom by name he mentioneth, above one hundred years before he was been, and well near two hundred, before the thing it self effected: and withall in declaring the restitution and enlargement of the Church, whereof that was a sigure; together with the calling in of the Gentiles by Christ; restitution and enlargement of the Church, whereof that was a figure; together with the entiting in of the Gentiles by Christ; whose incurration, birth, breeding, calling, offices (word, prints), prophetical) life, teaching, confreq, sufferings, death, rising again, glory ensuing, kingdom courts, quadratem, the so largely and lively describeth, that he may seem rather to expire associated whereof, he is by the Ancients not undervite associated whereof, he is by the Ancients not undervited from the ensuing the configuration of the ensuing the configuration of the ensuing the ensuing predictions being usually servedly termed. An Evangelical Prophet, and A Prophetical Evangelist. Even his menacing predictions being usually served to the ensuing the Configuration of the Configura tempered, and closed with some gracious promises of the Gospel. His continuance in the Prophetical function, is from the times of the Kings under whom he prophecied, not improbably deemed to have been about threefcore years. Howfoever, that which is from the Jewish Doctors received, concerning his prophecying under Manasses, and suffering death by him, seemwant to from the Interesting of his Prophecies making no mention of any King under whom he prophecied, lower then He-eth groundless: the inserting of his Prophecies making no mention of any King under whom he prophecied, lower then He-exhalt; towards the latter end of whose reign, it is not unlikely that he died. Besides this Book of prophecies, he wrote also the acts, first and last, of King Uzziah; as appeareth by 2 Chron. 26. 22. but that seemeth not now extant. See on Chap I. I. Somuch of his writings bath by Gods providence been preserved, as he deemed necessary for the good of his Incl 1. 1. Ziph. 1. 1. Zach. 1. 1.) there both lather, and Son, were Prophets; whence they conclude, that Direct, Amos, On idiah, Vahum, Habbasack, Ha. gy, and Malachy, were Prophets indeed, but no Prophets Sons; because, though the pla e of their birth, or abode, be mentioned, yet their parentage is concealed; which, albeit of Amos it be true, Amos I. 1. and 7. 14. Yet of the reft of them is altogether uncertain. Nor hath that rule concerning the former, any good ground; but is a meer fruit of their own fancy The mention of the parents of some of them seems to have been added; either because their parents were of fome eminent note or place, in Church, or flate; as Itr. 1, 1, or, because, there were some other of the same name in those times, from whom

Wed there is much variety of opinion, as well among it to lightly

Bootors, as among our own writers. Some will have it to fignifie, Appears, as among our own writers. Some win have it to fignite, flighth as take upon them so fore-sel future events, by the view of the skie, and the posture of the Stars, and Planets, ch. 47.13. And they deduce it from a word that fignifies, to cye, or observe, 1 Sam. 18.9. From whom those livary on or unch, who would have the term used. of fich, as raife their conjectures, from the various figures, and motions of the clouds in the skie; or from the flight of fowls, that flye in styping the store in the steps from the right of towns, many en-the skie towards the clouds, Gen. 1. 20. Deut. 4. 17. Prov. 23. 5. And they derive it from a word, that commonly, fignifies a cloud. Others, such as by magical skil delude mens fight as drawing a cloud, or cafting a milt, (as we use to say) before menseyes; whereby things are made to appear other, then in truth they are. So it is thought, the Magicians in Egypt did, Exod. 7,11, 12, And of thefe, fome deduce it from a word that fignifies an eye : others, from a verb, that fignifics to sloud, Gen. 9. 14. Others understand by it, such as give anfwers to those that repair to them, for advice and direction, concerning their affairs, and fuccelle of them; deriving it from a word that fignilies to answer: but this seems over general. Others, such as observe daies and times, as good, or bad; lucky, or unlucky: such as those, that cast lots before Haman, Esth. 3.7. fotching its original from a word, which fignifies, as they supthe Straphims] Or, Straphs. A counterfeit Authour of pretended antiquity, whom our Popith Writers follow, makes these Seraphs, the last of those nine orders of blessed Spirits, as he reckens them: the terror time orders or memoraphies as in receivable than and heafthms them to be fever degrees above the Arth-August, theing, according to his account, the eighth) and never to fir out of the glorious prefere of God, asthading here about his throne. So, that, as he flates the rank, those Serubs are the highest; and the Angels the lowes. True it is, that some distinction of degrees and the Angel the lowest true it is, that ome autume on or degrees among those glorious creatures feems to be intimated by a place in Daniel, ch. 1.13. where Archael is faid to be one (as most) the field (as some) of the third primate. Which can hardly be understood other, then Angels. For, whether version we admit, a chiefty of some, in regard of others, feems to be intimated. But to fet out certain feveral and diffinit ranks of them, affign them their flations; defign them their offices, and cut them out their work, is a prefumptuous attempt of ignorance and arrogance, joyning together, for the producing of a groundless and frivolous conceit. Nor is that less reliculous, which fome of them tell us, that Scrapha, and fo Chetu- imputation accreweth to them from Christ, anther, in

And we read of an Angel, that had power over the firetand to fearth men with fres. Rev. 14.18. & 16.8 But of this allo, as of the former. Concerning the number of them that appeared here, is some doubt also made. The most affirm them to have been two only; answerable to those two small Cherubs in the Tabernacle, on the lid of the Ark, Exod. 37. 7, 10. and to those two large ones in the Temple, that reached with their wings stretched out from wall to wall, in the Holy of Howith their wings itrezened out from white warpinting roay or ride-lies, I King. 6-27, againt which fome object, that the word is not dual, bur plural: and howfoower that exception be but weak; for the plural is oft ufed, as well of two, as of more, Levit 5, 11, & 14. 22. yet she affertion is uncertain; fince that we find four fuch in an apparition, Ezek. 1.5. and myriades, yea millions of them, Pfal. 68. 17.Dan. 7.10.nor is it necessary, that the number of the Seraphs, should here answer the number of the Cherubs, either in the Ta-bernacle, or in the Temple, more then the like essewhere. How many therefore these were of them, cannot certainly be determined; but hereof, see more, v. 3, 4. The description of them, in what shape

And it is true indeed, that the word here used, fignifies both these; fometime, to burn, fometime also to remove; as was formerly the wed, on ch. 4.4. But neither doth ci-ther of those senses fit well here with the context; nor doth this prophecy feem to reach fo low, as those times in the primary, and eculiar intendment of it. The first exposition seems the most probable. For as for that which a learned late writer hath, who taketh the latter word in an active notion, thus rendring the text; it shall return, to wit, from captivity, and fhall be to burn; that is, shall destroy and burn up its enemies; as Zach. 12. 6. But this is one of their groundless conjectures. We know well, that it is a thing not unufual in Scripture, to genealogize, as well bad as good, Jer. 12. 18. & 26. I. & 27. I. went up] Some conceive this tearm here used, either because the land of Judah was a mountanous country, and so higher then that from whence they had advanced; or because Ierusalem was fitu-ate on a hill: (though it were rather on a knole in a plain, Jer. 17. 3. and environed with hills, Pfal. 121.1. & 125.2.) and that therefore it is faid, thuther the tribes go up, Pfal, 122. 4. Though that is, but as we are faid to go up to London, from all parts of the land; be-cause that is our chief city. But besides that, the words of ascending. and defeending, are in the hebrew tongue, frequently used for going forth, or, forward, fimply, without any reference to the function for height, or lowners of the places, towards which men advance. Of which, see chap. 38.8. & Jer. 34. 20. & 37.5. where the Chaldeane are said to go up, that is, to go away, or depart from Jerusalem. It is, besides this peculiar phrase in that language, to say of Kings, or Commanders; that they aftend, or go up, when they go forth upon any expedition, when they go out unto war: fo Horam went up to help Lathilb, John 18.33. and Jeshua with all Ifract, went up to affault Hebron, Josh 10.36. and within threefcore and five years Shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people? Concerning this prediction, and the fint of time mentioned in it, there is no small difficulty. Since that, from the time of this Prophecy, about the third or fourth of Ahaz, as was for-lage to them both, such as the Syrian sometime challenged the settled State, which was in the fixth year of Hezekiah, 2King 18,9, there want not, that reduce them to a far narrower compais, to the space of eleaven years, two of Pekah, ch. 8. 4. and nine of Hothea. King, 17.6. which difference we shall not now stand to reconcile, because it concerneth not this place. This knot some finding not how how to untye, fall to cut it assunder. And pretending the original copies to be corrupted, would have fix read for fixty; as if the guns copies to the corrupted, would have fix the story fixing and five, that is, eleven/pass it the Propher had fall, within fix, and five, that is, eleven/pass it hall Ephraim be broken from leang a people; and just to many, say they, are ecknoed from the time of this Prophecy, and to the rules of Sanaria, 2 King, 17.6. But this, because it feeneth over-bold with the text. and introduceth a strange and unusual kind of computation, we let pais. The most generally received folution, given both by Jewish Doctors, and Christian Writers, is, that the head of this account is to befetched, not from the time [that Elay spake these words: but from the time when this diffolution of the Ifraelitith State, was by the Prophet Amos foretold. This they recken two waies, Some make up their account by the reigns of the Kings of Judah, Amos, fay they prophefied in the daies of Uzziah two years before the earthuneypropineted in the dates of training to Jean Scote the carling under Among Lind (as the Jewish tradition hath it;) just at that time, when he prefied into the Temple to burn intenfe, and was finites with the Jepofie, 2 Chr. 26, 16, 20. This they prefume to have been in the twenty and seventh of his reign, two years before which Amos began to propheficito wit, in his twenty and fifth. Nor do they much fwerve from this way of computation, who would have the number of years reckoned from that year, or the next after it, wherein Uzziah was fo initten: because, fay they, the Syrians then began (taking occasion by the kings diability) to make inroads on his land, a King. 15, 37. Though that feem rather to have been in Jothams reign: and, in likeliheod, toward the latter end of it. But however that beithele aprecision of the latter end of it. Dut however that befine a gree with the former, in that, albeit they make lizzish's irruption into the temple, two years foomer then they: Yes both begin their computation from the same year, to wit, the twenty and fifth of Uzziah;and so cast twenty and seven years of his reign being, in all, two and fifty, z King. 15.2.) into this ac count; unto which, if we add his fon Jothams Jikteen, 2 King, 15, 23. Ahaz his fixteen, a King, 16.

a: and fix of Ezckiah's, (for in the fixth of his reign-was Samaria taken, and that State ruined by Salmanefer, 2King, 18, 10.) we have the just sum of fixty and five years. But against this computation, we have divers weighty exceptions. First, there is nothing more then uncertain tradition, to affert the truth of that terrible earthquakes co-incidence, with that inconfiderate act of Uzziah, Secondyears—instance, which that incommence at our search Section 9, it is not onely improbable, but indoubtedly untrue, that thrzi-ah was finiten with leptofic, either in twenty and firth, or in the wenty and fireth, or in the wenty and fireth, or in the wenty and fireth, or in the first of the search year of the search of the eign, which should be the very same year that he became a leper, according to the one; two years after that fad occurrent, according to the other. Neither of which is agreeable to truth: The facred ftory informing us, that Jotham was not either unborn, or an infant, when his father was fo imitten: but of thole years that he was able, both to mannage the private affairs of the royal family, and to fway the State, For fo it is faid, that his father being sequestred upon that occasion, Jotham his fon, was over the house, judging the people of the land, a King, 15, 5, Lastly, it is objected that Amos his pro-plecy, which is made the head of this account, was as well in Jereboams, as in Uzziah's reign, whereas the year of Uzziah, which is here fixed on, was some space of time, after Jereboams decease. For . Tuziah began to rigin in Jereboams tenny, and feventh year, a king, 1,5,1, and Jeroboam reigning but fourty and one, 2 king, 1,4, 3, His laft muft fall in with the fourteenth of Uzziah's, fome ten, or eleven thort of Uzziah's twenty fifth, the furt year of their account, Otherstherefore to foun these difficulties, make their reckon ing by the reigns of the King of Ifrael, and carry up their account to the seventeenth, or eighteenth of Jeroboam. From whose reign, taking either twenty and four years and so not regarding the reigns of Zachery, and Shallum, his next successors, that made up but se-ven moneths between them, 2 King, 15. 8, 13. or twenty and three years, reckoning one year for them: and thereunto adding Menahems ten years, 2 King, 15.17. Pekahiahs two years, 2 King, 15.23. Pekahs in years, a ning. 13.17. rekanians two years, 2 king, 15.23. Rekans twenty, 2 king 15.27.: and Hoficahs nine, 2 king 17.67 they make the fum, with out any overplus, compleat. But we meet in Scripture again with that which diffurbs also this course of account: For we read there, that Zachery, Jeroboams inis course of accountries we read there, that fathers, Jeroboums fon, began his reign in the thirty and eight year of Uzziah, King. 15.8 Now his fathers half falling in with the fourteenth of Uzziah; there must of necessity be an internal of, at least two, or three there muit or necessity be an interest of a treat two, of the and twenty years, between the deceale of the tather, and the fhort reign of the fonyimpoofed to have fallen out by the infancy of the fon, at his fathers deceale: neglected therefore, and not regarded, while others governed, until that comming to fome maturity of years, he gat the reins into his hand, but held them not long, Now these years, taken in, will make the product arise far above the sum, meny thewed; (i.e. on v. 1.) unto the time that the tentribes by salmanefer king of Affyria were removed out of their native foyl, and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any any and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any any and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any any and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any any and transported into other parts of his Dominions; nor had now any any any and the text. a. The ground & end of the fign given, or a fligned here, is to be ob-ferved. The ground was Ahaz his diffruit of Gods power, as delub-ing, whether he were able to do that, which the Propher, would have ing influence to were able to do it that, with a to a copiet, who had a bulk into believe, and rely on him for, to wit, to proceed, and faile and him and his flate, against two fusch perent adverfaire, without affiliate of forme foreign forces. The end is to affire Alias, thist God, can do as much, yea, sind much more threat this amounts to go to things more incredible, anote impelfible then this. This can do things more incredible, anote impelfible then this. This he can do things more increase, more importance that this, I my was no more then God, at divers times, had formetly done, as flories fliew, Gen. 14.9.15.16. John, 10.5.10.2 King 10.4.1 Chron. 14.9.15.13.8 to. 1.32.8 but the figa here propounded, was of fuch a thing as never the like was, either before or fines the birth of a Virgin. So as never me une was conter perore or innerpre unit of a right. So that is, as if the had faid unto Ahaz. Thou doubteft whether God can deliver thee from the forces of thefe two kings, without help of fome other humane aids. I 'fhall tell thee of a far present; and more unlikely matter, that he both can do, and will do, be can, and will, cause a Virgin to be conceived, and delivered of a child, without the

3. It is the usual manner of the Prophets, in their prophecies and predictions of resistant manner of deliverances of Gods people, to make mention of the Meffias, and to point unto him on whome all those promises of special mercies and favours, made to that people were founded ; and for whole fake deliverances were oft afforded. were founded 1, and for whole fake deliverances were of afforded, even unto thole, who were altogether unworthy of them. In agard whereof, it is not without fome good probability, deemed by fome, that the Prophet, therefore, inflead of fetting this 2 any other fing, directed him unto the Melfust whole misseduous birth, was the most fifficient fign that could be, both of Gods power for, and love to his people/by confideration of him, if the had any faith at all in him, to entertain fome hopeful affurance of Gods word to be under good to him, in the particular now propounded. That very addition of the adulte-rous strumpet is sufficient to overthrow this: For, undoubtedly, the Spirit of God would never yoke the bale carriage of fo vile, and about the spirit of God would never yoke the bale carriage of fo vile, and about the Spirit of God with that facted mystery of the incarnation of the Spirit of God. of the Son of God, never to be without much reverence mentioned, or minded. To leave these therefore to their several authors, ed, or minded. To leave these therefore to their several authors, fautors, and abetters. The place, to me, sems not plain onely, but very pregnant for that sense of the word, which, as genuine, and general, we avow. For the scope of the place is clearly this, to shew how closely, and cunningly, persons, either men or women, can carry themselves, in contriving, and compassing their plots and practices, for the fairstying of their defires, when they are lewely disposed. And the sense, consequently, apparent; that a Virgin service of the sense of t disposed. And the sense, consequently, apparent; that a Virgin can hardly be so strictly watch'd, and kept, but that a man, so asean hardly be for fieldly watch'd, and kept, but that a man, fo affected, will by one way or other, product acces to bee, and that for coverily, that no notice, for the prefere, thall be taken by any that he lattly term with ber; as of Amenon, Abilahem to Tama; as Sam, 13, to, in whole cale also, nothing would have been for perfect other then well, had not the parties themselve, by their own after-carriages, bewaryed it. And the like is added, to make the obfervation complost, of a married woman, dishorelly limited; when yet can earry on the dilloyal practices, to smoothly, and ferretty, that no note of dishorelly shall appear with her. And thus this tree cleared, and the Jewish Dodors onely instance being removed, our reason against them, as well from the constant use. from the native lense of the word, stands firm against them, that the tearm here fignifies a woman untoucht, in Solomons phrase, and the tearm here fignifies a woman untoucht, in Solomons phrale, and the Apoftles, Prox. 6.3 p. 1 Co. 7, 1. Whereunto we might further add that which puzzles them, not a little; what firange matter it fould import, for a young woman to bear a child, and here our great Mafter in Ifred are at a fland; one supposing the sign to conside hereint, that the child, this young woman went with, should preve a Son; another, this to be the flangenelle of the matter; that this Man-child, as floon as ever he was born, flouid be able to different between bad meat, and good; another, that he flouid cat butter and honey, as floor as he was born, inflead of facking in his mothers milk. First, because it takes away the strangenesi simismated in the thing it fell, here propounded; and which is, by this suggestion, pretended to be the type. And secondly, because it may justly be deemed to entrate the authority of the Evangelith Manthew, expounding the Prophets words, as jooken by him, of a babe to born, not ofton eithat had been a Virgin, until in marriage he was begotten ofher; but of one, who was a Virgin, even then when the was atteady conceived of him in her womb; as the words when the was atteady conceived of him in her womb; precifely, both with the Evangelists, and with the Prophet here, import; not a Virgin shall conceive: as if the meaning were one, gin, in that manner, as he was: and as it is certain, that nonce-yer, but he, was. And we shall not a little infringe and abate the force and weight of those two principal, and pregnant testimo-nies, the one concerning our Saviout, his mysterious Incarnatinies, the one concerning our Savioux, his mylterious Incarnation 1 the other, concerning his miraculous Kelturethou; if we shall thus, as some have done with either, byte our the main pith of them, to make them applyable to any other. The Mother, therefore, of the child here mentioned, is a Virgin: and no other that ever beliefed Virgin, the Mother of the Messia, continuing a Virgin, not withstanding a Merker, Matth. 1. 18, 23, Luk. 1. 27, 33. V.25. And on all hills, that Shall be digged with a mattock, there Shall not come thither, the fear of briars and thorns | Some read the words, far otherwise, on this manner. As for all the hills, that were words, far otherwise, on this manner. ... as for an ine mins, and write digged with the matter, thou Ball not come thibber, for fen of by_{att} and thorns: A want of the prepolition, as Mal. 3, and they conceive the Prophiets meaning to be, that thole hilly placers, which had been before cationly kept, and digged for vincyards, ortands, or gardens, tking, 2,1,4,14,13,6, found likewise be to over-grown with brambles,and bryars,that no man fhould date to enter upon them. But this agreeth not with the latter part of the verse; for how should their cattle then be turned in thither? The most therefore flould their cattle then be turned in titute; ? I he most therefore follow the more received reading. But fome undefinand it, of a change for the better: that the barren places on the hills, that before would yield nothing without a great eda of hard about and coyl, should be free from those obstructions, and over-spreading could be the control of the places and because of the places are the places and because of the places and because of the places are the places are the places and because of the places are the toyl, meant netree from those constructions, and over-preading of tuch next one shrubs, as inclifted other places; and becoming feetle, afford their cattle good patture. And the Hebrew Dectors run most this way. See before, on ver. 23. But this feems to cross the fore-going difcourfe, and the main feope of the Prophets speech, others suppose it to have relation to those that were before faid, not to venture out unweaponed, for fear of the enemy : that they should berake themselves to the mountains, that were likewise over grown with bushes, and briars, as to places of more security : the enemies with bushes, and briars, as to places of more lecurity: I the enemies for, overfusping the fear of any hust, that from those thomy furubs might accrue unto them, and by the hard labour of their hands, hiere, help themselves. Others again would have the meaning to be, that no place shall be funumed for fear of bryars and bramble; albeit whey should require never so must pains to id them. Others, that men having betaken themselves thisler, should so distingently ground pushed hilly places; that there should be no fear of building the should be the fear of building the should be should be the fear of building the should be should be the fear of building the should be sho and feed there, which for fear of the enemy, they durft not truft on and teed there, which for tear to the cinary, seey admitted that to the plain. a mans pen] By this some of the Lewish Doctors understand to be a must peral By this some of the lewish Doctors underfland to be meant onely, a material pur; to examed, in opposition to that imm-matismay pen, that he law in the vision, like that ratery that Excle-cile win the fame manner, Excle, 5.1. which was not a must ready, no more then this a must pen. But this is a meer groundless fan-cyFor it appears not, that ether Islaids, or Excisiol had any fuch apparation representing that, as in some visible or imaginary form, that is here or there metricules, but by a fector tiggethon, or in-Rinct, which was sufficient, an injunction to do the same : as when a man would have a Scribe, or Notary, to draw fome infirument for him, he need not flew him a pen, or paper, but give him infiru-ction onely, what he would have him to write. Others therefore understand it, not so much of the pen it self, as of the letter, or the flyle, as we also tearm it. Some of the latter, that it should not be written in some strange character, that sew could read, as that doom passed upon Baltasar, Dan. 5, 3, 15, but in a plain familiar letter, in an ordinary hand; such as any one might easily read; and that also so fair and large that it might be read aloof off, and without any long stay, Hab. 2.2. Some again of the flyle, to wit, that it should be conceived and delivered, not in an obscure, and dark enigmatical, or fymbolical manner; as that few capacities should reach it; that part of it especially, concerning the matter of Ahaz his fear, the overthrow of his two potent adverfaries, by the King of Allyria, & the feourging of him & his after ward with the fame rod. an expolition. Concerning Mahr-floidal-holfb-bax, as Ezek, 37, 16, for Judab, and for Jofph. Or, as others, without either, onely Mahr-floidal-holfb-bax, because the particle here used, is not assert ward repeated, verf. 3. This latter way many, yea, the most run; supposing that there was nothing more written in this great cell, but these sour words. Which, because it seems very improbable, they add, some of them, that it is called, a great roll, not from the bigness, or largeness of the volume, but because it was to contain great mysteries : and others of them, that Princes pattents, though never lo flort, are wont to be engroffed in large paper, or parchiment, and great letters. But not to infift on the forced confituation of the one, and the unufualness of fuch brevity in the other ; beside the improbability of the thing it felf, it would not reach the main intent, and purpose of this divulging it in writing, when as scarce any one, the prophet himself excepted, would be able to understand what were thereby meant. The forwoung oe ande to understand what were interesy meant. The for-mer, therefore, that render the particle, controling, or, for, fup-pole this whole Sermon, or Prophecy, was to be engrolled in it; and that, as they conceive, after the ulual manner of the Prophets, who uled to put their Sermons in writing; and having to done, to affix them on fome gate of the Temple : when e, after they had hung there certain daies, the Priefts took them down, and fo laid fed, was longer then ordinary: as that also which leremy by Baruchs them up, if they were by them approved, and so they were laid up, then up, if they were by them approved, and to they were failup, and came to be preferred for potherity. Now what till, y an concerning this particular prophecy, is acknowledged. But what is affirmed concerning an ordinary culton berein, is groundlefs, and nothing probable. It appears not, that the Prophets used considering probable, and they witting, and affising them in any public k place, for the view of all, for to divulge them. The very places that they produce the properties of the prope contrary. For what need was there to give order for foliar pechal prophecies in this kind, if that were the ordinary dealing with all keither is it to be believed, that if most of the prophecies, both of Jeronies, and divers others, had been so affixed, the Priests, that then were, would have taken them in, and had such care of them ; and not rather have pulled them down, and torn them in them; and not rather have pulsed them down; and torn them in pieces; especially having so maliciously and eagerly persecuted the Prophets, as faile Prophets, for delivering them by word of mouth, ser. 10. 1, 2, & 2, 6, 8, 18, 8, 9, 16. This prophersylveries, as some few other, was by a special command of God, thus written, and divulged; which, with other, the like, was expected.

gard of his interest with Alaz, whom the same did fo neerly concern and Zathaniah Int of on of Interchably Who this Zachaiah finoula be, is uncertain. The Jewih Doctors, according to their idle do-tages, (whom yet tome of one allo, herein, follow) tell us, a so of witab, that prophefied under Jehojakin, Jer. 26. 20. So of those two Zacharies, the one that prophefied under joath, 2 Chr. 24, 20. the other, that prophefied after the return from the captivity, Ezr. 5. 1. Zach, 1.1. And that these are mentioned, as witniffe, specuse their Prophecies, for the matter of them agreed much with this of Efay, And if it be objected, that the orne of these was dead long be-fore. 2 Chr. 24. 1.the other two were, as yequaborn. They would riay, and it is be objected, that the one or these was sead fong before, 2 Chr. 4, 2 t.the other two were, as yet, unborn. They would put this off, by affirming that all this was done but in a vilion; and nothing therefore hinders, but that fisch might be induced as mit-niffes, who, at that time, were not in being. And those of our subar herein concur with them, alleadg Moles, and Elias appearing with our Saviour, at his transfiguration; as if that also were but some imaginary matter, Matth. 17.4. But leaving these frivolous sur-mises to their authors; there is no doubt to be made, but that this Zachariah, as well at the former triah, was one that then lived. And Zachariah, as well at the former wriah, was one that then lived. And it is deemed by many, (nor is it altogether improbable) that it was that Zachariah, whole daughter. Abi, or Abijah, was wife to Ahaz, who, by her, had Ezekiah, 2 King. 18.2. 2. Chr. 29.1. And this Zachariah, they suppose to be joyned with Uriah; that by two of principal note, the one in the Ecclesiastical, the other in the civil State. cipal note, the one in the excellentications other in the civil state, this weighty matter might be attefted. Others deem it to have been that Zathaitah the Prophet, that propheted under Uzziah, a great part of his time; and is faid to have been a man of understanding in the visions of God, 2 Chr. 26. 5. and so the two witnesses might nulse unifous of Gody 2 Chr. 2.6. 5, and to the two witnedles might be a Prieft, and a Propher. But this I luppole so be the left probable; for that the holy flory feems to imply, that this Zachariah decade before the fall of Utzaih. Nor is there any ground for that which others guefi, of one Zachariah, Levite, of fome note, in Exchiah daics, 2 Chr. 29, 13, fave that the lived in those times.

Verf. 1. Neurabel(f): The first words of this verfe, which way foever they be taken, do evidently shew that this chapter has been before going; and is a continuation of the Prophets difcourfe, concerning the mind and mellage of God therein delivered. and they 'render it as ours hereton,' it's as Job 5.7. the damst [Pabla no la fuch, or war in her wexts on] Some, conciving the word translated damst[s, to have a notion, rather, of light in it, a sbefore, chap, 8.2.1 read the words, according to the old Latine, in part thus, No flight, or cleaps thall be to him, that it purpixed therewith, as rendring a reason of the perplexity that the perions thould be in, that were spoken of before. But there is no doubt to be made, but that the word used here, that it reference to doubt to be made, but that the word uided here, hath reference to that which was made use of there, whereof enough hath been faid already. And the Prophet may well be deemed to have retained the fame word, the rather, because it founds fweetly with another here also isded the elegancy whereof cannot, in our language be expected. On which ground also, comes not unjuly to be rejected, the interpretation of some other, who read the wedge thus; Fer no deflugations for significant of the content of th them: That is, fay they, (and they are some of the Jewish writes), the Allyrian King, who is to afflict the land, shall never be weary, or give over vexing; but shall be invading them, again, and again. See chapp. 24.78, Or, as some others and those of ours; It deflatigation shall not be to holy their are in firstirs: That is, those they shall be strained as wir. by Sannacherish we do: that shall be straitly besieged, to wir, by Sennacherib, yet shall not be tired out, and so constrained to give up. These suppose the word to be a noun, or verb, (which yet is not likely) coming from a root, that fignifies to be weary. For though verbs of thole forms, do oft enterchange, as eliewhere hath been observed, ch. 8.1. Yet regard must be had to the tenour of the context, in words o.1. yet regard must be nad to the tenour of the context, in words that are ambiguous, and not extrant elfewhere: and that obfarred, will not eafily admit that fenfe in this place. The most therefore, both Jewith, and outs, read the words much after the fame manner, as our verifion exhibites them. And in the Hebrew it runs. nes, as our version exhibites them. And in the Hebrew it runs thus: It shall not be darked unto be revolved, or with whom, it shall be streighted. That is, the land (for that all acknowledg is meant, and agree to be sipplyed, as before, chap S. 1.) that hall be in sinch freights, as hath been said, shall one be so darkned as in some former times, hereaker mentioned; that which is by divers diversly; yea, two contrary waise understood. For some take it, as spoken in way of aggravation; as if it were said, No maryel, if spoople shall be in soft persplexity, as hath been destribed; for this shiftistion, when it comes, shall darken the land determine, in a far more griegous manuer, then was done in the softbed; for this affliction, when it comes, thail darken the land of therwife, in a far more grievous manner, then was done in the for-inger invations; or incoulds made into it. Others deem it to be de-livered in way of mirigation, and alley of the former dreadiful in demunication; that though it housed go hard with the land of Ifrael, or Judah, and the inhabitants thereof, in the judgment here threas-ned; yet it found not be forgiveroully stifficed, as in those former invations it had been. Which to me fearms, well weighing both the tearms, used there, of those former insurfaces, the one of them especially and the centre of the Textinot for probable to be the mea-ning of the Proposet in this ladee. I taket a sidner therefore or a especially, and the cenor of the Textynot fo probable to be the meaning of the Prophet in this place. I taking stather therefore to meaning of the Prophet in this place. I taking stather therefore to the former fenie, Specially, 7, 17, For as for those that would read the words, it fould not therefore, which they find not therefore they are met with a that which immediately follows, see, where at Fift, Rec. under they will grant, that it was unterly darking in those times fore passied, which the Prophet here points to.

Heb, under whom it is first used to ber, or to it.Or, to whom differs, or straints, bo, or shall be. Taking the word, as some do, for a Noun; unit whom to her, or to it. A redundancy in that language, very familiar; as Gen. 1, 30.P.f. 1, 4. That the word dand is understood, all grant; but force understand by it, the land of Judah, strictly to tearmed; and conceive the affiliation, here force told, to be meant of the invafion made by Sennacherib, under Exc-kiah, (which feems most probable) or by Nebuchadnezar, under Ze-dekiah, which not a few hold. Others suppose it to be the land of ifficación the ten cribes becaule mention is made of fone parts there-of in the words enfaired. He not why the may not be both inclu-ted, fines the greater troubles were to befal either of them, then as, yet there hadnor was three fit accels for the Affyrian, to the one but through the other.

vexation The vexation (or fraits, rather, or diffrefs) here intimated, hath reference to that spoken of, chap. 8. as. and there rendred anguist: and is not to be carried on, as our English doth ir, to the next branch where mention is made of fore-passed times and to the next oranen where mention is made in the camparion between the vexation, or dillrefs; but between the dimmels, or darkets, that had in former times been, and that then should be. And though dimnel's, or darknel's, and vexation, or diffrel's, may amount much to one; yet for the right rendring of the Text, and keeping close to the context of the Prophets discourse; they are here to be distinguished: and the reading to be not the land final not be to vexed, or diffrested, but shall not be in that manner, dimend, or darkned, as formerly it had been. The main difficulty artifeth from the negative particle; which to falve, therefore, some would have the words read by way of intercogardon,by which manges of reading, foune Scripture-freuples, are founction by form decended, to be happy as not better by form decended, to be happy as not better they form the words being thus read, Half thouns carcraftd their jpy 3-ll the difficulties will be difficultied. The deriving interrogative being equivalent to an affirming enunciative. For the lenle, I concur with them; but I raile it from another ground. The Hebrew Criticks, commonly called Maforets, have observed divers readings in fundry places of Scripture, about no one word fo many, as about the word, to, which in Hebrew, according to a diverfe writing in that language, fignifieth one while, Not, another while, To him. This diverfity concerning it, is found, as Exod, 21.8. Lev. 11.21. & 25.30.1 Sam. 2.3. 2 King. 8.10.1 Chr. 11.20. Exr. 4. 2. Job 13. 15. Pf. 100.3.ch.49.5. & 63.9.16 in this place : the reading therefore being doubtful, whether not, or, to him, or, it; I follow rather this latter; though by ours fo generally renounced: not because those Jewish Criticks prefer it; but because it suites better both with the scope of the place, and with the sequel of the context: & read the words thus : Thou wilt multiply this nation, thou wilt encreafe their toy, The main exception which one of prime note taketh to it, is this, that the pronoun in the Hebrew is wont to follow the verb, where as here thus read, it leadeth. But so it doth also, Job 13.15. where yet most go with the keri, the same with this here. reasures [Heb.preparations, or prepared things. For the word it comes of, fignifies to prepare, and the Hebrews use the feutime commonly for the neuters and it imports therefore fuch matters of special use and worth, as are wont to be treasured up and referred, and the present the special use and worth, as are wont to be treasured up and referred, and the special use and worth, as are wont to be treasured up and referred, and the special use and worth, as are wont to be treasured up and referred, and the special use and worth, as are wont to be treasured to the special use and worth, as a special use and worth as a special use and worth as a special use and the special use and gainst times of necessary use and employment, such as the bidden treasures, that God promised, to make Cyrus master of, chap. 49.3. But because the word is no where else found in this form; and the Jewish Criticks, the Maforets, observe some misreading, or mis-writing rather, in one letter of it; and yet whether letter we take, the fenie rather, in one fetter on span yet whenter setter we take, the seine will be the lame; one that taketh upon him to be a great Critick, would instead of this feminine, substitute a maseuline form, that significant, as he saith, rams, or bet-weathers; but indeed, rather, great begoats, Jer. 50.8. diffinguished from rams, as oft, Num. 7. fo Jer. 51.40. put here, faith he, for Princes and Potentates! and fo oft-times they par necessaria ne. nermices and rotentates; and to occumentate, are chap; 3.6. But not to infift on the improbability of the sense here intended, as coming from the mouth of one that ftood fo much upon his valour and power; and whose prudence and policy, would seem to look another way; it is overmuch boldness thus to mangle the text, and to force in such senses, as the words will not admit.

I have pulled them down from their re-gal power, and made them my vaffals. v. 3.

as a valiant man Here also the Jewish Criticks observe some diversity about the text. For instead of that which our printed copies hold out, they with detraction of one letter, put in the margine, as fo to be read, cabbir, which word fignifies either firing, and mighty, as most take it, or copious, and much:as some other render that word. This reading, the Jewish Commenters following, and of ours, also, not a few, refer the word here, to Inhabitants, and expound of the sample of the first the word nere, to introduce the control of the meaning should be I will put, or throw down that the divel, or it may found the I will put, or throw down that the that divel, or it may firstly that have the strongest, or surest least, or places of abode. O. thers, many Inhabitants, as the word is used, ch. 16.14. and whereas it might be objected that the word is fingular, whereas that which it is joyned unto, is plural; and that the adjective is seldome set before its substantive:it is answered, in desence of this version, that the word may be taken here substantively:as the word of contrary signification, for the most part, is: and this also, Job 31. 25 and fo it may here be rendered, a multitude of Inhabitants, or literatio which might be added that fometime, though feldom, the adjective leadeth. See on ch. 9.6. Wonderful. Thus, they that follow the reading, as they termit : others follow the writing, as it is expressed in the textrane render it (not without the authority also of a Rabbine of great note) in the same manner, that our Bibles do, and the old Latine : as a mighty, or, a valiant man. Yea, some of the Jewish Interpreters would make a medly of both expressions, imagining the term here uled, to be composed of two words, cabbir, and abbir: which both they conceive to fignifie in substance the same : and to import a man of extraordinary might. But this exposition of that, which the text holds out, is controlled by the forementioned Author, Who upon a general furvey of all the places, where the word abbit is found, thews

V.18. And it shall confume the glory of his Forrest, and of his fruitful field Heb. Carmel. The proper name of a place; of which name, were two mountains, the one in Iudah; of which Joh, 15, 55, where about Nablas dwelling was, t Sam. 9, 2, the other fituated in the confines of Afher, and Jilachar John 19, 16, where Elias flew Baals Prophets, King 18, 19, 20, and it was neer to the lea, t King, 18, 42, 43, Jer, 46, 18. Now these mountains did not lya open, for reft like, or run wild, as Lebanon, but were enclosed manured, tilled, and cared, or planted with great variety of fruitful trees, vines, olives, figs, and the like; and had much far, and fertile foyl, and arable ground (whence a green ear of corn, also is so called, Levit.2.14.& 23.14.)

the one, or both of them, the word carmet was used, for any fertile, and fruitful place indifferently, whether higher, or lower ground and fruittu prace monitoring, minuted in any and the ground, mountain or plainings chap.16, 10, where mention is unade of Moabs, Canmel, and ch. 29, 17, where Lebansu and Carmel, are opposed; and so it seems to be here taken. Hence therefore, some would inter, that by the Forrest, as a wilde place, should be understood the meaner fort of Sennacheribs fouldiery; by the Carmel, his chief Commanders, Others imagin, that the defolation, or deftruction of his State, and country is threatned, and as of perfons of all ranks, high and low, rich Country is intextince; and as on persons of an anosomic and two much and poorlio of places of all forst. But this feems to direct too much from the Prophets prefent feepe. I duppole rather, with others, that by his Forelf, and his carmed, is meant the main body of his army, that feemed to refemble fome great forced, or mountain, whether wilde, or manded betinvaked with trees, whether for timber, fruit, or wilde, or manded betinvaked with trees, whether for timber, fruit, or fuel as thick as they can stand one by another, and by the glory therfacel, as thick as they can fland one by, another, and by the gloy ther-ofish choice perfors of command in itas by bir gloy, yet. 16. was meant his glorious army, or his army wherein he gloriedrio here, by the gloy of that his glory, those that were the more glorious prediction it, or of the more emmency in it, his flout and valiant Wardious, and his rich and flastly Princes, which from all follopped to be refrectively meant, by the Forrest, the one-by Carmel, the other, See [24:6.2.a. 23. Some conceive that there is mention here of Farrest and Carmel a in regard that his army, being of large extent, was encamped, fome in the higher, and wilder places, fome in the lower, and better manured. the higher and wilder placessome in the lower, and better manured. tion of the outward parts of the body, because the foul is set histicon trary to the manner of material fire; which, in burning of bodies, seizeth first upon the sless, or outward parts, and from them pierceth to the inward. The meaning is stather, as one of the Rabbins well ob-serveth, that it should so seize on them, that it should, as fire is wont to do, with living creatures that are burnt, or perfors condemned to the fire, not confume their flesh only, but take life away too, Leuit, 20, 14.8 21.9. The foul is commonly taken for the life, Gen. 9.4,5. Levit. 17.11, 14.1t is a proverbial speech intimating a total defluction of his army not unlike those of head and tail, branch and vulb, chap. 9.14. for the Prophet returns here to the former similitude of a body, veri 16, but he pursues it with a further amplification. It was leanness, or a confumption of flesh that was there menaced; as ch. 17.4, which may yet be without loss, or danger of lifety there vitals, and all are washed and confumed, as with fire: the very foul and spirit of this vast body, together with the fat and sless of it, is utterly and they shall be, as when a standard-bearer fainteth] Heb, and he, or, it shall be,or, it shall be with him, (as chap. 29.7.8.) as when a standard-bearer melteth, as alluding to the similitude before used. This some beare meltels, as alluding to the imilitude before uled. Others, rather understand it of his army, or the remainders thereofic shall be with his forces, as with an army, whose Standard-bearer fainting, and failing, the whole company is, together with him, qualled and quelled. Or, as when he having call away his colours, the whole regiment is disodered, and foon routed by the adverfe parry and fo it was with Sennacherilo great holle, they were fuldenly, a great part of them, unterly delivered, and the fitting the control of vived, when in the morning they law their campfull of dead corples, chap. 37.36, their hearts also melted within them, and they fled away with their Lord. But, befides that I finde no electrooting of any fuch conqueft of Babblen, in any that I hade no cleer footing of any tuch cornect of Babylen, in any prophane authorison on ytoot help at all of it, in holy writ, there are two main arg ments, which the Prophecy it felf offens, for the removal of this prematiles concert. The one is, that the defluelisen of Babylon, here denounced, is faid to be executed on her, for the deliverance of Gods people; and the procurement of the liberty, to return again into their own country: chapter 14, 13, nor is there mention, cl any deportation of them to Babylon, before the reign of Nebuchadartzzar. The other is, that fuch a nation of Babylon is to exercised as though the recognition of the control of the reign of Nebuchadartzzar. ine of Babylon istoretold, as should be irrecoverable, chap, 13.19.20. time, Babylon had been by the Medes facked and ruined, as this Author would have it, the Prophets words, of her irrecoverable roine, could not be true; were not then at least suffilled: for it is apparent that under Nebuchadnezzar the was in a most flourishing and magnificent condition, Dan, 2, 37, 38. & 4, 30. This Prophecy therefore cannot be understood of any other overthrow of Babylon, save that alone, whereupon followed immediately, the release of Gods people, 2 Chr. 36.22.23.

In which place of Moles, there is an allufion to the noration of the word here used, in the root, from whence it springs, in that clause; with whom their fathers were not affrighted. And this Exposition may feem to receive thrength, as from that in Matth. 12.43. where the Devil dispolicited, is faid to haunt water and dry places: fo, from that parallel place, Rev. 18.2, where it is faid, that Babylon was, upon her fall, become an havitation of Devils ; and an hold of every foul fprit. Nor do 1 doubt, but that that place hath a compliance with this. But that is spoken of spiritual, and mylical; this, of corporal, and material Babel. And I suppose, rather, the word, here, to fignilic some kind of strange beasts, as used to keep in waste places : ngrine tome sinuot triange occase, as the do seep in water prices from their horid, and onely shapes to termed; and the rather, because it is failed, chap, $4.13.10 Sei, [hell cry to his mate; fee further there. There want not, allo, that suppose the Stir large mentioned to be a kind of fowl and that of the rank of onels, of a middle fize, between the leaft, and the greatest: called by the Greeks, feps: whence also, we have our English word, feps: because it is a jowl full of gelliculation, prone to imitate the gellures that others represent it with, and to act, what it lees them do: and is by fuch means, commonly, taken, as the dotterel is with us. The main reason, I suppole, that induced them to entertain this conceit, was the word of dancing, here used. Which, of how finall force it is, to infer this new notion, will in the opening of it appear.

But there is no reason to make I jim, more, then Tsijim a singular ; and of the fyntax more anon. The other ground concerning the expolition, is drawn from the Prophets method. He began lay they with beafts, the Tijim, and Ochim; then paffed on to fowls, Owls, and Sers, ver, 21, and here he comes to speak of creeping things, or ferpents. But this they speak without proof. And I see no good ground therefore, for this new devised notation, and for the expo-lition, as little. Our English renders it not amils in the general, the lewish Writers, for the notation, backing them therein; though in the particular defignation of the kind, not agreeing among them-

Yet one I find that expounds this whole pallage of the Kings of Allyria underflanding by the rod broken, Sennacherib , Chap. 10. 5. & 14. 25.by the Serpent. Tiglath-Pilefer, whole Successors should be more griev ous to the Philiftings, then he had been; by the cockatrice, Sennacherib; by the fiery flying Serpent, Nebuchadnezzar, who came from the North, ver. 31. but this is nothing probable; nor fuits well with the times of those Kings. For neither could the Philiftines rejoyce at the death of Ahaz in regard of Sennacheribs fall, which was not be-

Chap. xiv fore the fourteenth year of Ezekiah his Successor, 2 King, 18.13. nor did Sennacherib ever rile, and recover ftrength again after that overthrow, Chap. 37.37,38. But this to falve, another I light on, that maketh the broken rod, and the Serpent Sargon, Of whom, ch. 20.1 the Cockatrice, Salmancier, the fiery flying Scrpent, Sennacherib. But neither is there flory to confirm this; nor is it faid upon the death of Sargon, of which, no mention is found; but upon the death of Ahaz, and, confequently, the enterance of Ezekiah, at whole comming to the kingdome, it is not unlikely, that God would have this Prephecy delivered, to make him the more gracious in the eyes of his people, as one that fhould recover that power, and regain eyes of his people, as one that mount recover that power, and regain that honour(by reprefling the malignant attempts of their adverfaires, and his good, yea great fuccets against them) which his Father had emberiled, and lost by his folly. a fiery flying Scrpent The word, Saraph, here used, fignifies such a kind of ferpent, as with extream heat, paineth and killeth. For it comes of a word, that fignifies to burn. Whereof the Scraphim al-fo. Chap. 6.2, have their name; being the very same with this, used, Num, 21.6, where it is said of them, they bit the people, some of them, even to death; and it is of the Greeks, for the fame caule, called preffer The word fergent, is not here in the text; though it be joyned with t, Deut, 8.14, And it is fayd to fly; as here, fo chap. 30.6, either because it is winged, as those Scraphs were; chap. 6.2, and as some dragons, or ferpents, are reported to be; of which kind I have fometime feen one that had a kind of wing like your flying fifty or, because of their fwift motion, whereby fuddenly jerking up, they floot themselves I with motion, whereby materity jersing the theory motion themselves forward, or dart themselves gue, of trees, on men, or beaffs, as they pass by Jior of a lwift motion is the Hebrew word also used, 1/s.1, s. 10, 8, 91.5, Chap; 11.14. In regard whereof, some conjecture the Sepent, here mentioned, to be that which the Greeks call Acontain; and the Latine Jaculus, from a javelin, or a dart Howbeir, I cannot concur, with those that render it, assessible the firey frepent, for such teathered ones, I suppose to be figurents only. Now to such serpents, as are here mentioned, as Ezekiah compared, not for any fierce, fell, or mischeyous disposition, but for the hurt, and damage that he should do to the Philiftines; and to this latter alfo, for his fwiftness, and celerity, in over-running, and fubduing their country. See Dan. 7. 4.

V.30. And the first born of the poor shall feed, and the needy shall live down in [aftty] This some suppose added, because by the tearns for-merly given him, Ezekiah might be deemed to be some cruel tyrant, to thew, that though he should be such as is thereby intimated, yet he should be careful of the good, and fafety of his own people, whose prosperity and plenty, security, and indemnity be should therewhose property and plenty-sterry-sain interimely enhant are more there by protur. The fcope feems to be, to declare what a vast difference there should shortly be, between the State of the Phikitims, who now so much flourished; and the State of the Jewish people, at prefent lo much impoverished for whole constellation this prophecy was principally intended. Thus God firengthens the floyl againft the flrong, Amos 5.9. For what fome would have here intimated of their enlargment, quiet condition, and full feeding, after the Allyrian fiege diffolved, Ch. 33. 16, 17, 20, & 37.30, seems to be without she verge of this.

Others, of late, have thus rendred it, Bocanfi Moab, www.ited, Ar is cut off, because Moab is wasted, Kir of Moab is cut off; and so carrying the sentence on to the next verse. The reason why they read it thus, taking in the word Month, from the fore-going infeription, is, because the verb of walting is masculine, whereas the names of cities are feminine. But that need not enforce any fuch supply, since that the genders are not in the Hebrawr so commonly observed. So chap. 13. 11, where the Nouns are both feminine, the verb joyned to the one, and the participle to the other both masculine. And the like,ch. 16.3. observed there by the Hebrew Criticks, and oft elsewhere See Jer. 2 23 24. So Gen. 1. 30. and 9.3 the meaning is the paftures, as utterly spoiled either eaten up with the enemies horse, or trampled on and stamped down with their feet, and lo beaten into the foyl and mire, made of that which grew on them, that there is nothing green to be feen. Dimon The Tewish Doctors tell us, that this Dimon is a river in the land of Moabjand that fiream, fay fome, that appeared like blood to the Moabites, in the expedition of the three Kings, against Moab, and was after indeed so dyed with their blood, z King, 3, 22. 24. whence they imagine, that it was afterward fo called. But it may well be questioned, whether any such stream continued there, after that extraordinary flood, by the Prophets prayer, at that time, in that sheir extream necessity procured. Some again of ours say, that it is not a river, but a city, that belonged sometime to the Gadites, But we find elfewhere in Scripture none of that name, Otherstherefore laftly, suppose it, to be no other then that Dibon mentioned before, ver. 2. but by the Prophet here fo termed, with change of a letter mor Dibon; but Dimon: (as Merodach, for Berodach, Ch 3 t. r.) in regard of the abundance of blood, that should be shed in it. and the streams about it, or neer unto it, thould flow with, a new name, is upon a new occasion given it:as Gen. 17. 5,15.8t 25.30.8t 32. 28, Judg.6.32. Send the lamb to the Kuler of the land] Or Send a lamb the Ruler of the earth; as the old Latine, and those that follow it, expounding it of Christ, that came from Ruth the Monbitels, Matth, 1, 5, or Send the lamb of the feder of the land, or, the earth which teems to find bett with the original. The great variety of expositions, that both Jews, and Christians, give of the words, were too long to telate, and lost labour to refuse, they being many of them to about d. I will pek out of them therefore one; or two only, that feen most probable; and pich upon that, I deem molt projer. Some therefore of prime note expound the words, as if the Prophet thould advite, or admonifit the Mosbires, to fend lambs and the like, for facilities to God the Rulet of the whole world, 1 Chr. 29. 14. as Heathen Princes sometime did, Ezr. 6.8-co.8c 7.15-23 to make their peace, if they may, with him. So it flouid be like that, Mal. 1.9. But the genuine [cnl] feems rather to be that, which the founder fort of the Rabbines have; and divers of ours also admit ! that the Moabites are called upon, to pay that Tribute to Ezekiah, which was due from them, to the Kings of Judah. David had conquered Moab, flain a great part of them, made the reft of them tributary, 2 Sam. 8.2. this tribute, part of them, made the reason ment troutany, 2 sams a.s. this tribute, because they abounded in the State, upon Solomons decade, the Kings of Ifrael gor this yearly puthforn into their hands, and enjoyed t quietly, without refulal, unto Ahabs decease; after whose death, they denyed it to Ahaziah, and to Joram his fons, 2 King. 1. 1.88 3.4,5 The Prophet therefore here minder them, of their duty herein, and willenthem to fend the Rulers Lamb, that is, the prefent, or tribute due tohim, as the Lord of the foyl, to whom of right it belonged, being of tonings the countries of the manning lome add, mat they are summuned now to to acoceaute there was no king of fixed now to receive it, Samaria being taken by Salmaneler, and that kingdome diliobred, k King, 18,9,10 is not fo certain; but that more unlikely, that the Prophets words should be spoken in why of derlifton, and similates on over them, after their definedition, and the desolation of their land ; as if he had faid, ye refused before to pay your wonted tribute, confifting of fo many thousand sheep, fend ow, if ye can, but a lamb only, as implying, that they had scarce a lamb then left them, of such numerous flocks, as they were late possesfed of But lamb, is here put collectively, for lambs, as tion, for lions, ch. 15.9, and lambs here, for fuch cattel, as their tribute confifted of iss lions there, for fuch beafts, as are wont to kill and devour men, 1 am not ignorant that one of the Je wish great Masters would have the word ear, here to signife a fivist beast of the Cannel kind, pointing us to a place, a King. 11.4, 19. where the words are, the eatim and the runners, which we render, the captains and the guard: as if the meaning were that they should fend in post-haste. All that can be objected against this, is, that this is used commonly for rams, and that clim and carin, are fonctime found mentioned together. as Ezek. 39. 18.80 2 King, 3.4. But herequite may be answered, that in like manner sheirim and athudim are both used for he-gonts, and yet there feems some diffinction between them, and the latter, to be the leaders, See chap, 14.9.8 Jer. 50. 8. and the carim to be among the freep, as the athudim among the goats, Beoncof the Rabbines well) in effect, though in other terms, with the former. Mean while, I incline to the latter interpretation of this passage; to wit, that not a far deportation of mens persons, or of their goods, and chattels; but a large propagation, and extension of branches, feems here to be delineated. See the very like to this, Pf, 80,9-12. and the very fame; but contracted with this, Jer. 48.32, both re-lating the former flourishing condition of the places there mentioned to move unto commiscration, and to make the lamentation, for their present desolation, the more grievous.

V. 9. Therefore I will be wail with the weeping of Jazer, the vine of Sibmah | Of this fee Chap, 15.5. and ver. 11. Among those that thus read and render the words, there is fome doubt moved, what the weeping of Jazer thould be. And fome of them would hence gather, that Jazer was facked, and ruined, before either Sibmah, or the reft, hereafter mentioned. And so the meaning should be that he should lament the destruction of these katter, in the same manner as that other had been lamented before, But the words are, by others, diverfly rendred. Some read them, I will bewait the weeying of Jaze: the weeping (supplyed out of the former branch) Of the wine of Sibmah: That is, I will bewail the miseries of them both; or, I will bewail them, as their inhabitants did, when either of them were destroyed. And some again, I will bewail the weeping (that is, the calamity) of Jacer, and the vine of Sibmah, But these take no notice of the particle, which in these forms hath his peculiar fenie, and ought not to be difregarded. The words therefore, to avoid all ambiguity, would be thus rendred; I will with meteping bewait (that is, very grievously bewail: as chap. 15.

within three years] About these three years, there is much diffention among Interpreters. Some would have the words read, not ron among interpreters. Some wond have the words read, into within three years; but in, or, for three years. Expounding them, not, as fetting a time, at which this milery of Moab should begin, or from whence it should commence; but importing onely, whenor trom whence it mouta commence; our importing oneryywhen-foever it began, how long it fhould continue. That it should not laft long, as Babels, before, Chap. 13, 19-22, it should not ex-ceed a three years term. But this Interpretation, hath but few fol-lowers: and other places, parallel to this, as Chap, 7, 8, & £1.16. (though a little difference there be in the particles uled there, and here, carry it, rather, the other way, ro wit, as defigning a certain time, which this calamity (hould befall Moab. But among those may be aniwered: First, That though Elay, and Jeremy, use ma-ny the same terms, and that of the devastation of one and the same land; yet it followeth not necessarily thence, that they speak of the same time; yea, or the same particular dessection in the Book of the revelations are many forms and expressions borrowed from the writings of the ancient Prophets, yet applied unto the stories of other times, then those whereof those former Prophets spake. Secondly, it appears that Moab had been dispossessed of much of his land, not onely before the times that Fereny points at; but long before the times that Elsa lived in: See head to see he had been long at reft, before the owners words imply onely, that he had been long at reft, before the overthirm then themoned; nor had endured, and undergon fuch a general deportation, as either the ten tribes, or the other two of Gods people had done. Thirdly, Josephus faith not that three year, but that five year, after the fall of Jerusalem, Nebuchadnezzar invaded Calosyria, and after that sublued, fet upon the Moabites, and Ammonites, and made a conquest alfo of them. And laftly, (though it were granted, as I suppose it well may be) that the fore-going Prophecy of Moabs atter devaftation, was by Nebuchadnezzar to be accomplished; yet could it not be necessarily thence inferred, that the three years, here mentioned, might not commence from a nearer tearm, then the times of Nebuchadnezzar. There is no necessity therefore of drawing the period of these three years, so low: nor is there ought to countenance such a vast divulsion of them, from the time of the del very of this Prophecy. Whereunto other, with better ground of reason, reduce them; though they also are at much disagreement among themselves. For some would have them to commence from the infl year of Ezekiah; Supposing this prophecy to be of the same date, with the next before it, denounced against the Philistines, Chap. 14, 28, and that Sasmaneser in the south year of Ezekiah, when he came to beliege Samaria, 2 King, 18. 9. took the Moabites land in his way, But this feems not so well to fort with the advice given to Moab, by the Prophet, for the prevention of this judgment; to fuccour, and harbour Gods people driven out of their fucinity, ver 3.4, there being no occasion given, of shewing any such kind office to Godspeople, during the three, or four first years of Ezekiah's reign. Others therefore, drawing down these Moabites, in that Allyrian invalion. But it is deemed rather, that Mosbites, in that Allyrian invasion. But it is deemed rather, that they were of the lewill people more peculiarly foe tearmed; in the behalf of whom, those offices are required by the Prophet. Others therefore, go yet lower. Some fixing the date of this Prophet, much about the eleventh year of Ezckusil's reign, in whose four-teenth, Sennacherib came up againft Jushi', a King; 18, 13, and with a Jescencio on Mosb, what was here demounted againt it. So, the three years should come about, just together, with Sennacherib viswelfone of Jushi But this onnion labouring of the faunt So, the three years flould come about, just cogether, with Senna-cheribs invasion of judah. But this opinion labouring of the fame difficulty with the former; fome to falve it, make them to commence from Sennacheribs fegg of Jeruslaem, three year after, which, they imagine that Sennacherib invaded Moab; delevedly fiolied and plundered, through Gods just judgment by him, for their harft and unknot carriage toward his people, that had fought fuelcer among them, when their own country had been not long before over-run by him. And this indeed might well like with that, which was from that ustlage of this Problecy, obnot long perote over-tun by him. And this indeed might well full with that, which was from that pallage of this Prophicey, objected against the former. But there is another difficulty arising here, indeed of that hereby removed For Sennacherib, by that blow here, nulcad of that hereby removed For Sennacherib, by that blow given him, while he was minding, and attempting the freegy-atters, then befregone, as yet, of Jerufalem, was so weakned and difficult of the state of the state way against electrically being so soon after it, cut off by the hands of him way on soon for the state way against the state way to deliver my conjecture, or more than the state way to deliver my conjecture, or more way to the state way to state when the state was the state way to state when the state way to state when the state was the state way to state when the state ed) nor by Salmancier, nor by Sennacherib; but by his fon and ea) nor by Salmaneer, nor by Salmaneirs (1) one of the foreign fear-haddon: who after his fathers deceale, having recovered fome frength; it is not unlikely, but that he might again make towards those parts, and invade fome of the neighbouring make towards those parts, and invade fonce of the neighbouring States, and Moab, in particular, expecting fonce opportunity to be dealing with Judah in revenge of his fathers quarrel. To eagrefs my mind herefit more fully; I suppose that the utter deffutition of Moab, here before denounced, and by Jeremy, long after fectonded, to have been executed by Nebuchadnerzar. But as the Lord useth sometime to give assurance of the head of the considerance of come professions. nezzar, But as the Lord literal hometime to give allurance of the the complement of fome prophecies, of longer date, by fome other prediction of a nearer tearm; (whereof fee ch., 8, 16, & 8, 4, & 14, 25, Jer. 28, 16, 17,)in like manner the feems to me, here to have done, For having in the force going Prophecy, threatned the utter ruin of the Moabitish State, which was many years after to be effected; of the Moabhith-State, which was many years after to be effected; the doth here, to give the fronger affurance of the complement of the fame, fore-tell that within three fours after the promulgation of this prophecy, the State of Moab, by the Affyrian King, Efa-haddon, thould exceedingly be importeribled, and empaired. I hat which being then affected, though at prefent, it may be, little expected, might believe to make the two the former demunication, though nor for freedily to take effect.

either, the groves, and the images; as Pfal. 76-7, But the copulative is here put for the d fjunctive; as Exod. 21,17. Neh. 5.8. Thefe two words, rendred graves, and images, we find divers times joyned together, 2 Chron 34.4.7. chap. 27. 9. Of the former whereof is leis doubt, or difference among the Learned, Yet the word feems tens quaire, or americal among the actuation, actual work to be fometime used, not only for a growt, or a company of trees of lower growth, and lefs stature, growing thick, and close together as on a cluster; of which kind, they were forbidden to plane any neer to Gods house, or his altars, Deut. 16, 21. But for a model, or curious piece of workmanship of gold, or other precious metal, refembling such a cluster of trees. For some such, in likelynotes, retemoning near a context of rotes. For former men, in mery-hood, was that grow which Josiah found in the Temple; but brought forth of it, 2 king. 23.6. And deak with it, as Moles did with the golden calf, Exod. 32.20, and Ezchah with the brazenferpent, 2 King. 18.4. not unlike to the golden vine, and platane, that the Lydian Lord is reported to have represented Darius with, that the Lydian Lord is reported to have represented Datus with Herody, lib.y. Either of both may be tearned, the work of mans hand; because, planted by mans indultry, the one; and framed by mans workmanfhip, the other; whence the phrase of making Yours, here alluded to, 1 King. 16. 33. 2 King. 17. 16. & 21. 3. Howbeit, as before, the word altars, feemed to be put for the idols, worshipped at those altars; so here the groves, for the idols worfhipped at, or in those groves. But, concerning the latter word, there is no finall question: The word is not found, but in the plural, Hammanim, or Chammanim: And is derived from a Noun, that fignifics primarily, heat, Pfal. 19.6. And in the second place, the sun, (unto whom it is also there, by the Pfalmist, applyed) so cal-Nums (unto whom it is also there, by the Plalmuit, applyed) focalled, in regard of his beat, lob 30 38. Cant. 6. loch, 1.4. 2.3. & 3.0. 6. The Chalded paraphrist renders it, Temples: and fo also dothe the Greek, Ezek, 6.4, 6.4 and some of the Rabbines, on Levit. 26. 30. 43 that it Rights, shoules, or Temples, dedicated to the Sun. But this seems not to probable, by the collasson of other places, whence it was a supersymmetric than the state of the sun. it may appear that they were rather some kind of images, then Temples. For of Josias it is said, that he brake down the altars of the Baalim and cut down the Hammanim, that were aloft above, or befide them, 2 Chr. 34. 4. Others therefore, of the Jewith Docos, do with more probability, conceive them to have been images. And wooden images, fay some of them; as also the Greek renders the word, Lev. 16,30. because there is mention made of cutting them down, 2 Chro. 34, 4, 7. Ezek, 6.6. but that is but a woodden ground. For the word, that is there used, is applyed, as well to metal-materials, as to woodden, or treen-fabricks; as to bars of iron, Plal. 107. 16. chap. 45.2. But the images, lo tearned, are by the Jewish Writers, generally supposed to have been images of the Sun; or such, at leaft, as were erected in honour of him, and whereby to worthip him; as the heathen most of them did, Deur. 4. 19. & 17. 3. 2 aug. 23.5, 11.1er. 8.2. 87.18.88.44.17, 10.02.08.81.10. And 10 the former ferms to agree better, feph Ben-Gorion, in his Tenilly flory tells us, that this Hamman both with the Prophets fcope, here, and the like ellewhere. See ch. was an image, and made like a man of a middle age, with horns on 30.15. his head, like an Oxe, and a chin, or beard, like a Dog. Bur other of the lewish-writers lay, it was a picture made round, to re-present the Orb of the Sun, like our figns of the Sun. And Benjamin the Iew, in his travels, tell us of a Town he met with, inhabited by culbites, near whereunto were abundance of altars, and images, refembling the round Orb of the Sun, whom that people wor-hipped; which, by magical arts, at the Sun-rifing, when people, men and women, came to burn incense to them, shined very bright, and made a great noise. And I remember to have read in Hero, a Greek-writer, his wind-works; how, by artificial device, an image may be so framed, that the Sun thining on it, may cause it to yield fome kind of sound. But I suppose this to be but a siction of that Icwish author: whereof he hath not a few. Howbeir, from this Hebeew Hamman, it is not unlikely that the Phenicians had their i-dol, from whom the Greeks and Latines had their, Jupiter-Hammon, or Amnon; of whom they tell many fabulous tales. But Maerobius relateth, Saturnall, lib.t.cap.21.that the Lybians worship.

This was in part fulfilled in the other people the Jew speaks of but at the Sun-setting; and representation of Ezekish, 2 Chron. 30. 11, and of Josah, 2 Chron. Intelligence of Exekish, 2 Chron. 30. 11, and of Josah, 2 Chron. but) of a ram on his head, thereby representing the rays, or beams of the Sun : As both, in Hebrew and Greek the words of born, and of gluttering light, are of neer affinity, the one with the other. Soe Exod. 34. 29, 30, 35 (whence the grols error of painting Moles with horm) and Hab. 3.4. It feems therefore most probable, that these Hammanin were images, of what matter, or figure foever, made, thereby to adore the Sun Nor can I therefore readily affent to that which fome later writers have conceived this tearm to import. The idolaters, fay they, had divers places for the worship of idols, according to the divers feafons of the year, and conditions of the weather; their groves, and thady-places, which they used in heat of furumer: and their fun-images, for in lun-thine places; which they made use of in colder weather; fo called, lay some, because they flood in the fun, and were fun barnt. And thefe two forts, fay they, are joyned together, as including all fours of idols, and idolatrous fervices, being reduced to their two heads. But for this diffinction, I find Little ground, either in Scripture, or elfewhere. Groves were community used, by the superflitious heathen, for idolatrous employment, in regard of a kind of awaild fread, that fisch thady, and folitary places are wont to furprize people withall, especially pre polletted with a superfictious conseit of some deity dwelling there. Nor were they went to make use of them, more at one time then another; the clothness of the trees, in them, affording, as well the ter, in the winter time, as fludy in the fummer. And statue suidales, as they render the word, fignifying images fet in the open are; having no covert, but what heaven affords, feenis not fo well feared for winter fervice, or for use, futable to cold and bluftring weather. I adhere therefore to the former; and suppose groves, and these Sua-mages, to be joyned together; because these idols were oft placed, as well in their graves, and high places abroad, as in their temples, and houses within doores. See 2 Chr.34.4.

The reason they give of it, is, because these three verses contain ? The reason they give out is, because usite three verter contain a denunciation of judgments, ainfi those people of several countries that affifted Sennacherib, and ferved under him, in his expedition against Judah, and leuthlaim, and the eight-certif Chapter is against the Ethiopians, whose definition God would have before hand denounced, that Gods people might not expect any aydifion them, or any means to be used by them, to divert the Allyrian, from his intended invasion of it. VV 0 to the land] A new Sermon, or prophecy, here beginned, as molt generally agree but against whom it is denounced, or whorn it freenally concerned, is much specificated by many. Some understand it, as menacing the ruine of Egypt which others rejectibeeaufe the very next is peculiarly, and directly addersical against that State. Others suppose, that it threatens the Ethiopians, whom they deem to be desirated in the first, and fecond verifies. Others would have it meant of the Romanes, by whom Jerufalem was deftroyed. The Jewish ductors, of Gog, and Magog, to be destroyed in the dayes of their Messias, Ezek. 38.4. And lastly, some Spanish Writers, of the Inhabitants of the new-world in America, whom they vaunt of, as their converts. I suppose the Prophecy to contain a denunciation of defluction against the Ethiopians, to be inflicted by the Affyrians, chap. 20.4. (with a promise of future restitution, ver. 7. in the times of Christs Kingdome) but directed to the Egyptians, as their neighbours, Ezek, 29, 10, and confederates, Ezek, 39, 5, advining them by their Emballadouts to advertife the Ethiopians, of their rune approaching, Ezek, 30.

"No to the land] As spoken by way of denunciation, like that, chap. 17.12. But they who so take it, observe not that the denunciation of evils here mentioned is darted, not against the land, or ciation of evils here mentioned, is darted, nor again the same, or people, in this verifieder finelegably argainst the people acceptanced in the next verified, whom, they are three willted to find a mellage to, to a caquain; then the three willthau spears by verfe r. And therefore, as the more black and grim, so more horrid and savage. But the meltage seems to concern the Ethiopinorria and lavage, our the steamer terms to concern the Anniopinans in general, not any fixed all part of them. Others therefore, following the Latine, read it, Apropod whom there is no other, following the Catterine regard of freezens for formers, for others flut I fee not how the text will bear either in the other than the phrafe in the former fenfe, under thanding it of continuates of tine pirrate in the toliner tente, uncertainting it of continuance of time, as our English, and many others do, apply it, some to the lew-tilp ecople, who were tertible to other nations, from the time that God first made a nation of them, and long after, in regard of those ftrange works, that Go d, at feveral times wrought for them, Deut. trange works, that to a, at leveral times wrought for them, Deut, 4,34,10fh.2,7,10.8 5,1.2 Chr. 20.2,9 or in regard of their dreadful judgments, that at fundry times he executed upon them for their fins, such as might well firsk a terror into all that faw, or heard of them, Deut, 28, 28, 37, Jer, 18, 16, & 19.8. & 24.9. 25,9,18. 25 fome monarchy, or tyranny rather, being of the greatest antiquity of any, at least, since the flood, Gen. 10.8-11. and endured, in likelyhood, as long as any. But those that to apply it, may do well to consider, that the first founder, and railer of that kingdom, was an Ethiopian, or a Cushite, Nimrod the great hunter, the prime fon of Cush, Norwas it called the Assyrian monarchy, at first, as founded, or possessed by Athur, the fon of Sem, Gen. 10, 22, or any of his illue; but might fo be called, because Nimrod the Cushite, having in his conquests, to be cauca, because Numoto the Connect, naving an inst conquestly, dafer; the interruption of Babel, in which intended fundance, he leems to have had a chief hand/pierced into that country, which Assert and his like, as first, quiety positiled, did therein build the city of Not Market and made it the head-city of his dominions, and for you will be the control of is that of Moles to be understood, Gen. 10. 10. 11. This application therefore, of these words to the Asiyrians, leadeth us home, as by the hand, to the right owners of it: and directly pointeth, as with the finger, to the persons intended in them: To wit, the Ethiopians, or Cushites, a terrible nation from the first and no other also, in succeding ages. 11, 12. And some Christian Writers understand it, of a great dearth, that God would through drought, bring upon them, by re-training the river, from his accustomed course of overslowing, at itraining steriver, from his accusionned course or overnowings at leaft, in fuch measure, as was needful for a competent fupply. To which purpole, they alledg fome passages out of a passegrituil variation of light whe yonger, not allogether unlike to those of the Propher in this place. But the Propher seems rather, as others, before mentioned, to speak here of errours, committed by their Kings, and Rulers, to the prejudice, both of themselves, and their people, in draining the river, at feveral passages, and in severall places, for the effecting of their own vain, and ambitious defigns. And of this kind, as by the Prophet here intended is by fome Inter-preters of note, supposed to be the digging of that vast lake of Moe-rit, by those twelve Rulers, or Tyrants, before spoken of. But first they fail much, both in the time, and in the author of that stupendious work. For it was done a long time before their date, by a King, whose name it bears, who, as Herodor, himself relates, lived some hundreds of grars before them, though by occasion of the Labyrinth, by the secure, bailt neer to it, he takes occasion to make a further, and larger relation of it, as a work far furpassing the erecting of that Labyrinth, which might otherwise feem a marchless mafter-piece. Beside that, the making of that lake, in that place, in that manner, is deemed to have been a work of much use, & of great benefit to the country; both for the reftraining of the river, when it fur rounded beyon I measure, and for the helping of it, by an out-let, when it was likely to fal short, See Diodor, lib. 1. five cities] A certain number, for an uncertain; as all generally agree: five for many lay fome: but in Scripture, five is more common-ly uled, for a small number, especially, when five are either culled y utea, or a mantanuer; especially, ment power to the control of t leantling in regard of that whole country, which by some Authors is reported to have had above ten thousand, by some twenty thousand sites. See Herodot. 1.2. & Mcla 1.1.c. 10. To this, therefore, fome lay, that as there were among the Philithines, five principal, or head cities, though many other inferiour, and less ones besides, I Sam. 6. 4.10 there were frue mother-cities in Egypt, Memphu, Tanis, Alexandria, Bubashin; and Heliopolis. Which they would gather out of Ezekiel, 30.but there are more then fix mentioned in that Chapter, ver. 13, 14, 16, 17, 18. Others that the meaning is, that five cities, only, or finiply, are not nicear, but five of fix, as if five cities for one fould come in unto God, or one city of fix only, fhould ft and out, and perish in, and for their finibut how the regt will bear this. I fee not. Albeit, therefore we need not admit that excelling number of sities, which from their Priests report, these Authors relate to have been fometime in Egypt, no more, then we are bound to believe those thousands of years, that they affirmed their State in a succession of Kings and Priest, to have stood; nor again on the other side, have we any good ground, to reduce their prime cities to fo precife, and narrow a number, as bare five : Yet it is not improbable, that their principall cities, and royal feats, were not very many, suppose come twilve, as they might well be, about this time, when into twelve principalities was all Egypt divided. The meaning of the Prophet then may well be, that a confiderable number, (such as is five of twelve) of the chiefest cities in Egypt, should embrace the faith and service of the true God:and that the Prophets intent is to defign a number of fuch, appears by his express nomination de Heliopolis, in particular, to be one of them, speak the language of Canaan] What is here meant by Braking the language of Canaan, is questioned. That there is an allusion to the Hebrew tongue, as we term it; the language wherein God was then ferved by his people, is generally agreed on that there is some controversie among the learned, why that tongue thould be called the language of Caneau. The common, and almost generally received opinion, both of Jews and Christians, hath been, that it is so termed, because it was the native language of Gods people, who then are possessed and lived in, the land of Canaan, and in that and the poncincuo, and thereferved God; which language being that which our full parents lpake, and was in general ule before the division of tongues, Gen. 11.1. remained fill in the line of Sem, a meng those of Ebers posterity, (whom a special mark is fet upon, as the prime man in Sems illue, there recorded, Gen. 10, 21, wit a memorable note alto, subjeyned, concerning Peleg his fon, that in his days, the earth, or, world, was divided, Gen. 10.25, and from whose name Abram, is called an Hebrem, Gen. 14. 13.) and was tersued Hebrew, because continued constantly in his family : Howbeit, in these latter dayes, some men of great note have no t fluck to affirm, that the Hebrew tongue is termed here the language of Canaan, because it was the native language of the posterity of Cham, detending from him by Canaan, who first inhabiting and economy rom num by cansars, who mix intabiling and peopling those parts, both retaining that language in the division of tongues, and transmitted it to their posterity; and that Abram was wholly unacquainted with it, as being not his native language, was whose unacquainted with it as being not in interest singuage, untill leaving his kindred, and Fathers houle, where he was bon, he came to live in the land of Canaan. But this opinion, though maintained by great authors, feems to me very improbable, that the ancient congue, spoken commonly, year, generally, before the building of Babel, which procured the ensuing division, should be lost in that family, that in all likelihood had no hand in that bustness,and should continue in the line of those that were most deeply engaged therein; and in all probability, drew others thereunto, Gen.10.10. The arguments brought to confirm this new conceit, seem very weak, and inconsequent, and would require longer discourse to discuss, then the present work will well afford. Suffice it uncourse to ducing then the preient/work will well afford. Suffice it mays for our prefent pupole, that the Hebrew tongue, in ordinary use with Gods people then refiding in Canaan, is the language, if not intended, yet alluded to in this place: called all the from faguage, No.1, 13, 4, chap 3, 6, 11, 13, A, new gridtion ariseth, what is here meant by speaking this language; And there want not, have underland to of the driver of the state of th that understand it, of studying, learning, and making use of the Hebrew tongue. Which some Writers, therefore, testifie to have been very common in some Egyptian Towns, bordering upon Palestine, and to have continued, though not without some akeration, even rno their times, and the meaning is, faith one of ours, as if it were faid of fome perious or places, in Hungary, or Transylvania, that the people are so affected and taken with the Mahometan Religion. that they wholly addict themselves to the fludy of the Arabic enactiney who my additional themserves to the unique of the arabide tengue; because Mahomets Law is written in it, and lo here of the Egyptians, that out of love and affection to the Jewish Religion; and the worship of the true God, they should define to learn, and the very fame that is prophefied, and promited. But the question is, what the ile, or ilend, here spoken of, fhould be. The word is deemed, most properly, to fignific ani-laid, that is, some land on every side enuironed with water, as lake, some great water encompassed with land, whence ariseth that queftion, among the ancient Geographers, whether the earth were an Eland, or the fea a lake that is, whether the fea encompassed the land, or the land the fea, and hence in Scripture, the Iles of the the Sea, Efth. 10.1, chap. 11.11, and, the Iles in the Sea, Ezck. 26, 18, but it is used also, as is generally agreed on, for such countries, and regions, as lay upon the Sea-coasts; foit seems to be taken, Jer. 25. 22 Exck. 37.3.15. Hence fome gather, that the Philiftines country thould be here meant, because it lay upon the midland Sea, See Jer. 47.7. but fo did the land of Ifrael too, Joh. 13.4.12. 47.and that reason some of the Rabbines render, why it should here besoftermed: nor is it a sufficient argument to prove, that the Jewish land should not be here intended, because that their

Vert. 1. The burden of the defart of the Sea | Here begins a new Prophecy, another Sermon. Of the word, Burden, see on Chap. 13.1. That this Prophecy concernent Chaldea, and Babylon, appears evidently, as well by the name of it exprelly mea-tioned, were, a salfo by the iNations precifely manual, by whom it was to be defitoyed. But here are two quefitions moved concerning this Deptetey. The former is, why the Prophet hould have another Sermon against Babylon, when as he had to large an one against the before. To which it is answered; for two causes specific the service of the causes of the cially: First, because the people of God were too prone to trust to, and seek amity with, as the Kings of Asiyria, though they fmarted for it,2 Chr. 18 16,20,21 fo the Kings of Babylon, who af terward flood up in their flead, 2 King, 20,12,13. chap. 39,1,2. And again, because they were to fustain very heavy things, at their hands, p.king. 20.17, 18. Liap. 39.6.7. The thropher therefore, or God gather, by the Propher don't the rather of mind them of the ruine of Babylon; partly, to withdraw them from relying on a State that was it felf, to be ruined; and parrly, to comfort them, in regard of those ovils, that from that City and Kingdome they were to endure. For the fame cause, may seem so many predictions to have proceeded from this our Prophet, of the Allyrians downfall, chap. to. 1-20,24-348t 30,27-33. and of the Egyptians, as from the fame Propher chap 19.8 20.8 30.3 8 31.3, fo allo from Jeremy, Jer. 43.8-13.8 44.29,30.8 46. The latter question is, why Babylan, or Chaldea, should be tearmed the defaut of the Sca. To this, a late writer of some note, answers, that though the Prophecy concerns Babylon, yet by thefeterms is defigned, seither Chalden, nor Babylon, but Idumea, or the Country of the Edomites, who inhabited the defart of Sur, or Etham, Exod. 13.20 & 15.22. Numb. 33.8. But had he shewed how this sad Prophecy had concerned these E-domites, or where any mention had been therein made of them, there might have been some colour of ground for the turning of it that way: now having produced nothing from the matter of it, to back, or second this his conceit, we see little reason to assort entertainment unto it, and taking that for granted, that others, as well Jews, as ours, generally agree in to wit, that it is Babylon, or Chaldea, at least, that is in these termes described; we shall proceed to confider why it should be so termed and because the word defart, is full in the text, we shall begin with it. Chalden therefore is here termed a defint, as most Interpreters imagine, for two causes; the one historical, or geographical, not because it was a wild, or waste country : For it was a very rich, and well watered foyl, but because there lay a large desartior wide wilderness, between Chaldea; wherein Babylon stood, and the countries of Media, and Persia; by the people whereof, it was afterward invaded. The other Pro-phetical: not because it was at present so: because it was in time to come to be laid waste, and desolate, chap, 13, 19-22, and as it had made the whole world a mildernesi,ch. 14.17. in like manner, by way of just retaliation, to be made a wilderness it self. So Plat. 137.8. Jer. 51.29,36,37,43. I shall make bold to add mine own conjecture, and leave it to the learned. The Hebrew word fignifies as well a plain, as a wilderne/s, chap. 63.13. Jer. 13.24. Lam 4.19. & 5.9. and the notation of it, from a word, that is in the Chaldee, more common, fignifying to lead cartle out to the places where they are to feed carries it more specially unto such plains as had pasture grounds in them, or confifted of fuch. So the word feems to be taken, 1 Sam. 17. 28. & 24.1, 3.8c 25.8,15.Pfal,65.12.13.Jer.9.9.locl 1.19,20.8c 2.22.Luk.15.4. compared with Matt, 18, 12, I suppose therefore, that Chalden hath this zerm given unto it not as a defart but as a plain: and fuch incountry had no where in particular, this name given ir, when as the deed that connery was, wherein the building of Babylon was fift

The Talmudist stell us, that this Shebna, with some others, made a defection to Sennacherib; by whom, after the flaugh others, made a defection to Sennacherib, by whom, astere the Istugh-ter made by the Angel, in his camp, they were carried away, in much dipleafure into his own occurry, where, after formedefight-ful ulage, he put many of these to death: and this may be as true as what other of them Bay, there with Jehojakim, or Jehojakim, land why nor, as well Zedekin 1) he was by Nebothadnezzar carried to Babel: or, what others, northat be definded abovada better to be best of the property of the state of the state of the state of being fequenticed for his leptolic, the fair fair Like, 1, 1, 2, 1 in fairly in the like cate, though our to be long recovered, ha, return in the like cate, though our to his former office, and dispits yearned to the city, though not to his former office, and dignity again, now conferred upon another.

and there the chariots of thy glory shall be the shame of thy Lords boule Some of the Rabbines on this place, out of their Talmudick flories, tell us another flory of Shebna, fomewhat differing from the former; that when Shebna came alone to the Affyrians camp, and they asked him, where the rest of his conspirators were, he tole them, that they were revolted again, and so had deserted him : where upon they laid hold on him in a rage, and having bored though his feet, they drag'd him, fastned to horse-tails, over brambles and bryars: and that this is that, which the Prophet foretel-leth him here, of the flately chariots, that there he expected to have But this may well go among the reft of their fondly for ged figments Other of them more ferious, expound the words thus, Thy flately chariots, that are now thy glory, thall be turned into thame, and ignominy, because thou art the shame of thy Lords house; and so in noming, because thou are the iname or my Lords nome; and not him. fay they, was fulfilled, what our Mafters fay, He that feels the fisame of his Mafters house, his hower shall be turned into shame: or, as other of them, whom many of ours also concur with, keeping closer to the text; and there shall thy glorious chariots, all thy flate and pomp, that thou now gloriest in, dye, that is, cease, and come to an end, O thou that art the shame of thy Lords will carry the amon', with a mighty captivity! Help it cassing, or, throwing the out, as Ch., 1. with the cassing, or, throwing out of a man or, is calling the out with cassing, O man; os, O thou mighty man; for for the word properly signifies, See on Chap., 29, 81 pc., 31.

32, which they expound, either God will cast the out in such a solder maner. Violent manner, as a man of might and strength is wont to throw ought away from him; or, hee will cause thee to be carried away captive, with fuch a captivity as men ule to be captived with , who captive, with men a captivity as men meto se captived with, who are carried away faither commonly then women, and are wonted have left favour and mercy thewed them, then that weaker lex oft hath; or, because the sormer noun of cashing, or, throming, is absolute, and should not therefore be conjoyned with the word man, from which the point of diftinction also with holdeth it : the genuine fenfe feems to be this. The Lord is preparing fuddenly and speedily to throw thee out of thine offices, house, and place of abode, in a violent manner, (that the repetition, or reduplication of the fame notion, in the noun annexed to the verb, commonly imports, as Pfal. 53.5. & 76.5. Chap. 24.22. & Zach. 1.24.) O thomaghty man, (as Job 38.3. & 48.7.) thou that art fo high and powerfull in thine own conceit and apprehension : so Pf. 52.1. where the word deduced from this, and of near affinity to it, is used : or, O wan, fimply, and fo the Itali: n renders it ; Behold O man; as men use to speak to those whom they set light by, as not deigning to give them their name. And somewhat like hercunto is that of the Apostle; Thinkest thou, O man ? and, who art thou, O man? Rom. 2. 3 & 9. 20. But that foundeth not fo well, without fuch a trajection as the text hath not; which feems to have put it off, as a more emphatical compellation, to the close of the fentence. The vulgar Latine renders it, God will carry thee away as a cock is carried. Whereupon a learned Interpreter faith, he wondreth whence this coch flew into the text. But the answer is ready; It was by Jeromes over-much credulity, in giving credit to his Hebrew-maller, who told him , that Gaber here fignified not a man , but a cot k. And indeed to the Talmudiffs are faid frequently to use it. And so some of the Jewish Commenters in this place expound it; as if God threatned to drive him away like a cock, that is driven from place to place by the puttock : or to carryhim away, as a cock, or capon, is by the countryman carried to the marker, with his wings and legs tyed together: a fit emblem of a cap-tive, faith a Popilli writer, to fet fome fair glosse on this their abfurd translation, which yet must not be resused, fince the Pope hath fee his stampupon it; though it be confelled, that the author of it was herein gulled by the Jew. But contrary to all this that hath been spoken, concerning the sense of the place, some late In-God would doe with Shebna but what he had done for him: For they read and render the words thus, God that covereth thee with a covering, as much as may be for a man ; or, (because the article is absent) God covereth thee with a covering (and because the word is in an absolute form) even with the covering of a man: that is, God, who now arayeth thee with most gorgeous apparel: for rich and goodly apparel is an enfign of honour Gen. 41.42. Eft. 8.9-11. Dan. 5.29. Mat. 11.8. and Shebna was in likelyhood the second man in the State, as Joseph next Pharaoh, Gen.41.40. The ground they the user, as joteph next relation, or extending the merger give for this interpretation, is because the word here used, doth, at they fuppose, though it is another form, fignific to every. Neh., 1:5. Where it is faid, the gate of the foundaria be bailt, and covered it. Whence allot the drow bath its man in letherw, because it covered the ground, Judge, 6.40. and though the word in the Hebrew be the ground, Judg. 6.40. and though the word in the recover be not to usual, yet it is found in the Syriack of Daniel, where it is faid, the keafts bad covert, or, Ibade, under it Dan. 4.11. and both in the Chaldee paraphrase of the old Testament, & the Syriack version of the new, the same word is used for to cover, and to shadow, Ex. 40. 21.1 King, 6.9. Pf. 80.10. Mat. 17.5. Luk. 1.35. But it is wel observed. that the words used in the most of, is not all those places, may well come from another root, that signifies a stadow: nor is any place produced, wherein it is found applyed to appared. The fingle word therefore, being so commonly used, for casting, or throwing, I Sam, 18.11,& Pf. 29.33, Job 41.9. Ezek, 32.4. Jon. 1.4,5,12,16. fee not why it should not in the doubled form retain the same sense; or, why itshould not be so taken in this place, when as it suits for well with the main scope of the place; and the single word is there found used, where the same judgement is denounced, wherewith Shebna is here threatned, ver. 18. Jer. 16.13. & 22.26,28.

and will furely cover thee] Heb, and is in covering, covering thee] The repetition, bath ordinarily, an implication, either of certainty, or of eminency, vehemency, and the like; fo before, and again ver, 18. This also, those latter Interpreters expound as the former of Gods conferring honour and dignities upon Shebna; rendring the words, and doth clothing, cloth thee : that is, doth fairly, or gorgeoufy cloth thee. And they have the more colourable ground for this their exposition here, because this word indeed is sometime found used of putting on apparel, 1 Sam. 28.14. Psal, 204.2. & 109.19. Chap, 59.17. & 61.3, 10. But there feems no reason of weight appearing, that should necessatily force us out of the way of denunciation, which the Prophet all along here, is commonly deemed to infift in. Some therefore read it, he will wrap there up. So one of the Jewish Writers also; because the word is supposed, sometime, fo to fignifie, fee Jer. 43.12, and a man may be faid, to be wrapped up in his garments, as wares are wrapped up, in those things where-with they are covered. See on Chap 3.12, but it is taken, as they imagine; from those that intending to cast a garment, or some other look ching way from them, are wont to wrap it up, hard, and round, that they may ling it the further. But that notion feem rather to be implied, in the branch following, ver. 18. Others therefore expound is, be will tadd the far away, into capturin jike a bird. So another of the Fewill Commencers imposing the word a bird. So another of the Fewill Commencers imposing the word to have a notion of flight in it, as indeed fometime it hath, I Sam, 15,21.8, 25,1.4, the popel fersy upon the prey; and our mafter flew upon them, for fo the words there are; but then it hath reference to another root, as another of them, controlling this exposition, well observes. Others again render it, he well furely, or to the purpofe, cover thee, with thame and confusion, in stead of that honour thou now enjoyeft, and makeft full account full to retain; and so much indeed the word imports, where those terms are expressed, as Pfal. 89.45.8 309.29, but so it is not here. The received reading therefore, without any addition, doth well : the only doubt is. what severing is here intended, or alluded unto. And here some would have it to be, the touring enjoyned the Leper, Lev. 13.45? hence gathering that Shebna should be smitten with leprose, as Moses his Sifter, Numb. 12.10. Gehazi, 2 King. 5.27. and thrijah, were, 2 King, 26.19. And fuch a tradition fome of the Rabbins tell us here that the Jews have. But of this there is no great probability. Others therefore referre it rather to fuch a covering, as persons fallen into difgrace, furcharged with shame, or forrow, carried into captivity; or condemned unto death, were wont to have their faces covered with, as unworthy to fee the light, See 2 Sam. 15. 30, Eft. 7. 8.10b 9.24.Ezck.12.6,12.

V. 18. He will furely turn, and tofs thee, like a ball into a large country] Heb. he will wrapping, wrap the up, with a wrapping. There is a reduplication of the Verb, as in the latter branch of the verse next before going; and to that an addition of a Noun of the same notion, as in the former branch of the same verse; a defect of the particle with here, as there; and Chap. 21.7. The words may well be rendred, He will furely, or, fireightly wrap thee up, and tols thee like a ball. The same word oft-times comprehends a two fold notion, as take, for, take, and bring, Gen. 27.9, receive, for receive and give, Pfal. 68.18. with Eph 14.8. fo here, wrap up, like a ball for, wrap up, and tols, or throw like a ball, into a spacious land. Heb, a land large of hands, or, spaces, as Plat, 104. 25. Chap. 33. 21. He will be fure to fend thee far away from the place of thy present abode. An allusion to something made up round ike a ball, or to a ball it felf, that being toffed, or thrown, with more then ordinary stress, from a strong hand, into a spatious plain, where there is nothing to flay it, runs on an end forward, without interruption, or intermission, untill either the force fail that it was thrown with, through the great length of the way, or it arrive at the lands end,

The latter in this fense, no where elle found;but uled for excrements, Ezek.4.15. is deemed to come from a root of the fame notion with the forniers from whence also are words derived, that fignifie the fame thing, ch.4.4. Ezek.4.12. fo termed alfo, because they come out of mans body, Deut. 23.14. but this latter root feems to imply a more abundant iffice, flowing out, this mater too teems to many a more abundant man, awaing and, as five ant of water, from a fountain; because it hath neer athings with another term, that fignifies such sabindance, Deur, 33, 13, Job 22, 11, chap, 60.6. And because the former word is of a maskuline form the latter of a feminine, Some of the Jewish Writers under fland thereby, fons and daughters, and because it was before faid, that he should be as a father to the house of Judah, ver. 21. Other of them, with the Chaldee Paraphraft, under stand fore; and fons fons, or nephenes, as that name properly fignifies. But these are by other of them, not improbably, deemed niceties; supposing both words to fignific (as our Prophets manner is, to ufe oft varlety of terms) but one and the fame thing. For, as for that which a learned late Writer furmieth, that these two should be the names of the keys, that Eliakim should have the command of the former, of the foregate, by which they went in and out, of the word, that or the portgare, by which they went in and out, of the word, that lignifies to go out: the other, of the back-fade; because of that use of the word, Ezek.

And for this branch will not unfolly answer the sulf little proper, and bear up, with honour and credit, not those alone of his stock, that are performs of note, and parts, if for more honour club employment, together with those, that are of their illue, and partake therefore with them, in their honours: but even those also of them, that are of meaner parts, and lefte efteem, who yet, in regard of their alliance to him, should have respect given them, and have such employments assigned them, as they were found to be fit for. God the more to fpight Shebna, declares how not Eliakin himfelf alone, but his whole kindred frould be graced with him. Some expound the words of the great care that Eliakim should have in his place of securing even the meaner fort of people : and not their perfore only, but their goods, and chattles allo, even to the meanest of them. See Num. 24.24. Dan. 11.30.1 Maccab, 1, 1.8t 8. 5. Nor is it unlikely, but that those of Chittims posterity, were dispersed into diversor those forementioned places, out of which Merchants had traffick with Tyre. But this branch of the which Merchants had traited with 1 yec. Buttus Dishern of the verfe, concerning obstim, is by divers diverfly expounded. Fre forme refer it to the words beforegoing: a not of theke, fonete the fifth word, it was first, or spoiled from the Land of chitting, that is, fay fone of them, from Citilian, by which way Alexander brake into the Eaftern parts, whereof, yee, I find no particular mention, in the fories of those times, Others, from Macdonias, whereof Alexander was King, and from whence, at firth, he fee forth: and for the Authorite the Macagine confinable rates in whatenover a learned Wirer of the Maccabees constantly takes it; whatsoever a learned Writer in his Annotations, affirms, in the one place, by his own version, croffing himself in the other: and these both understand the place of that devastation, that by Alexander, and his forces, befell Tyre. But other joyn this passage to the words next beforegoing, thus rendring them, fo that there is no cutring, or coming, in from Chitlim, that is, to that the Merchants, who had wont from those parts to repair to Tyre, can now find no entrance thither. Thus they, that annex it to the former words. But most refer it to the branch follow-

Amids this great variety, I encline to tho fe, that joyn those words, from the land o harbour in Tyre, or entrance, into it, denyed unto such as had wont to have recourse thither : to which is added, it is revealed to them, to wit, to those that formerly traded with her ; the report is come to them, how it fareth with her, that the is facked and spoiled, and there is, therefore, nothing for them to do there: and the whole passage may, as I conceive, be not amis, thus rendred, taking the initial particle in a double notion : as Jer. 4. rendred, taking the initial particle in a double notion : as Jer. 4, 0. & 11.5. So the words run finoothly without rub; and many needlest difficulties are taken off, wherein most of, the other readings received, do note flatily entangle us. I shall add only, what one of the Jewish Commenters hath on this place; because I find it seconded by a man of great note; to wit, that by the Chittim. nna it reconstants are termed, verf. 12. are meant the Chulhit, a people inhabiting fome part of Susiana, to the East of Babylon, called also by the Greeks, cissia. Most Interpreters understand by the 1th Inter mentioned, Tyri is felfs, for called because it flood within the Sea, environder or one about with it, Ezek, 27. 3,4. & 28.2. untill by Alexander it was adjoyned to the Continent : as Pliny, lib.g.c. 19. The Inhabitants of Tyre therefore, fay fome, are here advised to be quiet, and not trouble themselves, about courses to be taken for the desence of their city; fince, that all would be to no purpose. See the like, Jer, 8. 14. Pal.
4.4. But this feems not to fuit well with the main current of 4.4. But this technical well with the main current of the context, running all along in the Prophetical frain, in speak-ing of things to come, as past and done; and of Tyre, as already, ei-ther spoiled, or destroyed: and others therefore, on better ground, ther spoiled, or activoyed; and others therefore, on occur ground, suppole, that the Tyrians are here called upon, (as were her merchants before) to mourn for her, and to be silens; that is, to leave their boasting of the state and wealth of their city, and their rioting and revelling, that formerly they had used, ver. 7-9. For they read the words, not imperatively; but enunciatively,not as adviting them what they should do:but as relating what they do; they are fill: or, as others, called upon, & advised to forbeare going to Tyre, or looking any more after her, as the word is used, Ezek, 24.17.or, willed to be down, and mourn with her, and for her, as thofe ver. 1.

results are creek contented to reduce a square at the following series is the name not of a river, but of a fown; studie indeed in the confines of Egypt and Syria, in a walte place, not far from the Sea, so called, from the condition of those that were first placed in it. For an Ethiopian King, having, as they report, sometime sub-dued Egypt, and finding the Kingdome much pestered with theeves and robbers, to rid the land of them, being loath yet to kill them, especially, being so many, only cut off their noses, and placed them in that Town, which there of purpose he built for them. So Strabo.lib.16:Diodor, I. I.c. 60, and Steven the Byzantine; Plity also mentioneth it, 1,5,c,13, and Ptolomy, 1.4. nor appears it, that this Town flood upon any river of note. For Diodore writes of it, that it had no good water neer it; nor was that very good, that they had from Wells funk within the city. Sihor therefore, (as this very place alone might suffice, were there no other argument to prove it) is no other then Nilus, as the old Latine also here renders it. For how about a thing were it to imagine, that either some for y rivulet, of which scarce any record because it lay on the skirts of the country, should give the name to the whole Kingdome; as Trude to Englandor, that the grain of Egypt flould be termed the feed of some such petry brook, tunning along through waft places, where starce any tillage at all could be had? Bessen, that the ancient name, that the river Nilus was known by, latimates as much. For Dionyle the Geographer testifies, as also Pliny, l. o.c. that by the Ethiopians it was anciently called Siris, that is, as 5. that by the Ethiopians is was anciently called Snn, that is, is thole inform so, who are skilled in that language, according to their manner of forming words, Shihin, or Shichin, which comes very nect to the Hebrow Shihon, or Shichon. Whence also for many aames in the Egystian conque, of Ofring, Buffrn, Petolipin, and the likerfor an ablutd thing it is, as Eultathius, on the Geographer, observes, to Igive Greek notations of Ethiopian, or Egyptian appellations. The Hebrew name Shicher, hath a notion of blacknes it, as appears by the common use of the fountain, whence it (prings, and other the islues of it, Job 30.30. Levit. 13.31 337. Can. 1.5.8 5.11. Lam. 4. B. Zach, 6.2. 6. and the colour of its water feems to have given the river that name. Whence also, the Greeks lecents to have given the river that name, Whence allo, the Greeks are decread anciently to have given it the name of Egypt, (as Eufathist obferves, that Homer doth in his Odyffes, 1.1. a.) and to the laid from it, which the ancient Writers called the gift of Nila, as produced, all the lower part of it, by the initialation of the river, and hol lim it brought down with it, and left there behind it, Herodot. 1, a.) and Strabe, 1, 1.) nor from Egyptus, a meer figurent of a man, fuch another as Nilaus, thould give Nilas his rame, Diodore, lib. 1, c.63; but from the colour of the water, refembling, not fo much the Eagle, thence fo called by the Latines, as the Vulur, termied Egypius in Greek, To which purpofe, allo, Eustathius further informs us, that it was likewife upon the fame ground, anciently by the Greeks, called Melas, which fignifies black and thence, by the Latines, in old time, Melo; as Festus, and Servius, on Virgil observe: To that both the prefent text, terming the Egyptian wares, either growing upon the banks of Nilus or procured, and produced by the water thereof, bateling the Egyptian foil, the feed, and howeft of Shibor; a sallo the name, by the Ethiopians, given to the river; the very lame, in a manner, with it; and the netation of the name concurring with those, whereby the Greeks anciently flyled it : do all joyned together, strongly evinge Shihor to be no other then Nihis. All that can be objected against it, is this, that the titen runn. An that can be objected against it, is this, that the Egyptian Shibo, or the river of Egypt, is mentioned, as one of the limits of the land of promile, Num, 34.5. Iohn 13, 3.8. 14, 4.47. I Chro, 13,5. within compalle whereof the land of Egypt came not, nor did the liftaclites ever politific for far, as Nilus; To which may well be answered, fish, that in like manner, is the river Eu-phrates recorded, as a limit of the same land, Gen. 15, 18. Deut. 1.7. & 11.24. John 1.4. and yet read we not, that Gods people ever posses. fed,or inhabited, at least so far. Though of Solomon it is faid, that; he reigned over all the Kings, from the river, (to wit, Euphrates as Pl 72.8.) even unto the land of the Philishms, and to the border of Egypt, 2 Chr. 9. 16 they attained not to the full extent of the boundaries by God affigned them:partly, through their own negligence and cowardile, Judg. 1.21,27-33. Hereunto may be added, that when Nilus is mentioned, as a boundary of the promifed land, it is not fo to be underflood, as if the limits thereof reached as far as the main' body of that river, or any branch of it, ran: (for then it should take, in the whole lower region of Egypt ; which the river Nilus, as Chap. xxii. doch on either fide, by her embraces determine) but any fuch branch on built, and peopled it, that lay formerly wafte: luftine, l.b. 18. And in Johna's time, though Tyre had the name of the fireng city, Joh. of that river, or fireani, thence derived, as lay neerest unto the land in Jonius steme, triough systemate in tension or see Jones, 6-73, 6-10, 2, 9, 9, etch ad Zielor the name of the great estimation, 13, 82, 19, 82, 83, though far inferiour to it for florength, yet for auplitude, far exceeding Tyre; in regard whereof Strabo tells us, that it was questioned in this time, wheather of the two ubusil be redoughed the chief ty of Picneis/gamean while they are wide, that from of Canaan, and bounded Egypt on that fide. V.10. Pals through thy Land, as a river, O diagniter of That billy Land, as a river, O diagniter of Inhabitants These words some take, as spoken to the Tyrians, or Inhabitants of Tyre advising them with all possible speed to quit their Country and to betake elemitables to some other place for fastey, or imply, and safety there, either for the one, or the other. See Hack 16.4, ver.

hurried to and fro, at the will and pleasure of those that have power | ing, as some would have it, that they should pass away before the ememy into captivity. Others rather conceive them, to be spoken to the multitude of Merchants, ortraders by Sea, whether of Tagins, Tartefits, or other places, that had dealings at Tyre, to withdraw them felves from thence, & betake themfelves to their own homes, See hefore on ver. 6.

Pajs through thy Land Or. from thy Land, So those that underfland it of the Tyrians, either fugitives or captives : against which is objected, that the particle from, which is not here in the text, is never omitted, where mention is of motion, from place to place; to which may be returned : First, that in somewhat the like pallages, as this, it is sometime suppressed, as chap. 18 7. and 52.2. And again, that the particle from is not of necessity here:through, which our English version hath, will suffice, and is sometime omitted, as our Enginn vernon nath, wit turne, and is ioniccinic omitted, as Chap, 47.2. Jet. 2. to and laftly, that it may be fimply rendred without either, Paff, or Paff over thy Land, life a river. Make no flay in it fit the word of Paff, in this Notion, of a motion from place to place, doth frequently admit an acculative case attending it, Gen. 32.31. Num. 35. 10. Deut. 3.4. the note whereof, is very commonly omitted. But others supposing the text not to speak of the Tyrians at all, but of thole that traded with them, render it, Pafs away, or depart, or return'to your own land, go back to your own Country, 25 Num. 22.26. Joth 6.7.1 Sam. 27.2.2 Sam 16.9, the particle to, or unto being oft times concealed as Exod. 4.19.and 10.29.1 Sam. 20.6. Jer. 20.6. See Amos 5.24.or, as a river that doth not flop, or flay, but runs on without intermission until it arrive at the Sea, Eccl. 1.7. Others conceive it, to intimate the flight of multitudes understanding it of those that traded at Tyre) as in flocks, or fnoles, in their paffage over-spreading the Seas; because the term of a river, is used in Scripture; as also, in other Authors, to note abundance, and plenty, chap. 8. 7. and 48. 18. and the word here used, is not a word that is general, common to all rivers, but peculias to Nilus, the river of Egypt, (which one of the Jewish Dectors supposets to be here intended) used of the main body of it, in the fingular form, Gen. 41.1,2,8cc. Exod. 1,22. and 2.3. and 4.9. and 7. 15.&c.and 8.5,7.and 17.5.chap. 19.7,8.ver.3. Jer. 46.7, 8. Ezek. 29. 3,9. Others, Tarfus, or Tarteffus the daughter whether Tarfus, or Tarteffus, or of Tarfus, or Tarteffus, for Tarfus, or Tarteffus it felt, as the like, ver. 12.) as if the Tyrians were advised to flee thither, leaving their own Land, the particle to or unto, being, though suppressed, yet to be supplyed, as before, But against this, is objected that where this form or metaphor of daughter is ufed; there not fo much the place it felf, as the people, or persons, there residing or inhabiting is implyed; which yet, it may e, need to be no bar to this exposition of the place; since that as well to the people of a place, as to the place it felf, men may betake themselves for resuge. But others conceive it to signific the shipping that used to Tyre, the daughter of Tarshift, that is, the ships of Tarthith, as ver. O thou oppressed] Or. O thou grievously oppressed; for the word is in that form, that aggravateth the simple notion of the theam, in which form the same is no where found, but here only; and our Prophet is in his terms very pregnant and precife. V. 13. Behold the land of the Chaldeans : this people was not, the Affyrian founded it for them that dwell in the wildernefs.] The scope of the Prophet in these words, by divers diversly expounded frems to be, to meet with an objection; or to remove a doubt at leaft, that many might make, or have, against the verity, or con-cerning the certainty of that that is here denounced against Tyre and Sidon, as deeming it a thing, confidering the prefent flate and ftrength of them, if not utterly impossible, yet almost incredible, that they fould be by any other people or power thus destroyed. This therefore the Prophet sheweth, to be no such, either impossible, or incredible matter: either by pointing at those, by whom it should be done, a people of more antiquity, and greater power then themfelves, and that had been the first founders of them, and their flate. as some; or as others, rather, by telling them of other States, to wit, the Chaldeans, or Affyrians, or both, which being far more ample and potent then theirs; yet had either the one by the other, or either of them, by fome other, in like manner been deftroyed fee the like, E28, 31, 32, — 11. V. 15. And it shall come to passe in that day At that time, wherein this Prophecy shall be sulfilled as ch. 10.20.8 22. 20. In the passeges following, there is first an extent with limitation of Tyres calanities, here foretold, how long they should continue, in this verse; and secondly, a gracious promise of her restitution, after that term of time expired, in the verfes following.

that Tyre shall be forgoiten seventy years forgoiten, that is, neg-lefted, not regarded, not looked after, either by God or Man . as Pf.1. 13.1. & 45.10, chap.49.14, Jer. 2.32, Hof. 2.13, & 4, 6. & 8, 14. becaule things forgotten, see nor regarded: hence, those exercises, forequent, Exod. 20. 8. Deut. 4. 9.23, 8.8, 11, 18. nor is improbable, or impercinent, that one of the Jewish Commenters here függesteth, that the Propher should have some allusion to the condition of an Harlot, forgatten, and forfaken by her lovers; fince that it fulteth so well with what immediately followeth, v. 16, so the word forgatten should have special, reference to her Merchants, whom her trade was with, before, ver. 17. fee the like, Jer. 30.14. Howbeit it feems more general, and to include also Gods diffregarding of her, who is faid to vifit her again, v. 17.

there is difference among it Interpreters : One furmife th fome corruption in the text; and that; as ch. 7, 8, there is, as he conceives, fixty, for fix: fo here, feventy, for feven: & thefe feven years, he supposeth to have been under Salmaneler, of whole invalion of Tyre, and in- | berty, thall by all means labour to fet up her former market and nare occur since trade for five years together, fee what was out of trade, and to draw merchants and customers to her again. Howbe-Menander alledged, on v.1. But this feems to be fomewhat overbold dealing with Scripture , both here, and before. Other Interpreters therefore, generally, reading the text, without any fuch alteration, deem their feventy years to concur with those of the Iewith Captivity in Babylon, Jer. 29.10. Dan. 9.2. and that the rather, be-Captivity in Davyon, jet. 1991.0. Annly 12. and unit the rather, because not the Kingdome of Judah only, but the other Kingdoms also thereabous, and those of Tyre, and Sidon, among the reflace said to be y God given, for the like time, into the hands of the Babylonian Empire, to ferve it, Jer. 27. 3-8. and a Commission to be made out from God to Nebuchadnezzar by name for the taking, and facking of Tyre, Ezek. 26.7.14. and Egypt affigned to him, as pay, for him and his forces, in way of recompence for their fervice,therein performed,Exck, 39.18-20. Howbeit, that prediction of Tyres destruction in Ezckiel , feems to reach further then this , fince that this goes with a limitation of years, and a promise of reflitution at the expiration of those years ; whereas there is denounced a final and perpetual devastation, without any restauration, Ezek 36, 34, 25 of 5 abylon, ch. 13, 20, according to the dates of one King] This one King, a late Writer

would have to be Salmanefer, during whose reign and life, Tyre was neverable to recover the damage that by him the sustained, whereof above. But this fandy conceit I let pais, because it is founded on that which directly croffeth and controlleth the text. The Jewish Interpreters that hold to it, yet are of divers minds about the meaning of it; some of them understand it of David, who is faid to have lived feochty years, being thirty years old when he came to the crown, and holding the Kingdom forty more, 2 Sam. 4. 4, which put together , make feventy. But one of them conteffeth ingenuoutly, that he knows no reason, why Davids life should be here intimated, as the limit of fuch a time ; which yet, another, to meet with, faith it might be; because there was a league of amity meet with, faith it might be; because there was a league of anity between their King and David, i. King, f. I. to mind the Tytians of the breach of it, which had brought this calamity upon them. See on ver. I. And some Christian Writers, who take this way, say; because the name of David was exceeding precious among the Jews and ull his acts and occurrents, of special observation with them But these reasons feem to be of very small moment : Others therefore suppose, that the ordinary limit of mans life is here aimed at , as it is circumscribed, Pial. 90, 10. by Moles , and by Heathen men, as Martrobius on Scipio's dream, I. I.c. 6. but faid, of a King, rather then of a man; that is, of such an one, as lives freely, and choicely not tired out with pains taking, not expoled to fuch occurrences and inconveniences as are wont to thorten mans life, in fuch manner as others usually are : and the rather (addeth the Rabbine)he faith, as of a king, becaule Tyre, who the liquid to the liquid to lived an Square of a king, becaule Tyre, who the liquid to liquid king as a Queen, or white mean princip, erg, but the most probable, and, as I cake sight go runium emaning of the words; but it, which another of them gives, according to the dears, that is, the Reigneys of the state of the dear the liquid to the dears, that is, the Reigneys of the state of the 8.21, to wit, in the dayes or reigns of Nebuchadnezzar, his fon and his fons fon, who succeffively held the Chaldean Empire, during the time of those fiventy years, Jer. 17.7. For those Writers of ours wrong them, who would father fuch an abfurd opinion upon them; as if by the daies of one King, they thould understand Nebuchad nezzar, supposing him to have reigned himself full seventy yeares which indeed is most untrue; for he reigned but forty three yeares in all, both with his father, and by himielt; as out of Berolus his Chaldenn, or Babylonian flories, loseph.againft Apion; which agrees well with the holy flon; wherein we find upon record, that in the righth year of his Reign, he carried Jehojachin away captive, 2 Kin, 24, 12, and withall, that he reigned not above feven and thirty year, after that, 2 King. 25.27. which put together, make up much about the fame fum, but come far fhort of leventy: Nor could those Towish writers be ignorant of this: nor doe they say, that Nebuchadnezzar is this one King, but expresly, that he, hu jon, and his fons fon, are accounted as on: King. after the end of feventy years] The time fet for her defolation, and the discontinuance of her wonted state being expired, what time the Babylonian yoke shall be broken; the also among other people, that had formerly been in bondage under that Empire, finall recover her liberty, and return to her former trading ashall Tyre sing as an harlot Heb it shall be to Tyre, according to the Song of an harlot. Or, as some; there shall be with Tyre, as the fong of an harlot. Which some understand of a long sung to an harlot : fuch a fong thall be fung to her , as men use to fing to an harlor, that hath for fome space of time been left, and not lookt atter, in regard of some disease, or other like dilafter, which she harh now overcome, and is recovered of again, inciting her to use means for the regaining of her Lovers : and fuch a fong they suppose to be that, which followeth, ver. 16. But most take it, for a song used by an harlot, to draw those again to her, as they pass by, who had formerly abandoned her: and fome therefore render it, there shall be in Tyres mouth, as the fong of an harlot, which our English well expresseth. The meaning is, that Tyre, upon the ruin of that Empire, which had at the sirst rising of it to its height, subdued her, and till that time kept her down; having now recovered her li-

it , I suppose they are over-nice on the one side, that would have Tyre, that was termed a wirgin before, while yet unfubdued, ver. 12, to be filed now an harlot, as forced and defloured; for neither was it Tyre, but Sidon, that was fo termed a nor is the confidered as unfubdued, where the is fo termed a nor is it violent entoreement, but voluntary profficution which makes any one an harlot. As also doe those mince it too much on the other fide, who by the word here used, would not have to be meant an harlet, hur one that earneth her living by fome honest, but mean employment; as by being an hotteffe, or an huckfter, or one that crieth time forty wares about, which they use to do sometime with a long and some alto, in fome countries, with the tinckling of a pan, or the like, as Tinckers do, thereof fo termed with us : that which they think alo alluded unto, ver, 16. So they suppose the word to be taken, where it is given unto Rahab , Joth, 2.1, & Heb, 11.31. (and it is not improbable, that the word there fignifies an hoffefs or withaller) and of those two women that contended before Solomon for the child, King, 3.16. of which yet, more doubt may juffly be made. And it is true indeed, as appears by a Poem affilbed commonly to Vireil, that hostelles in those times did usually by such singings and inglings invite customers to them; but those that so did, were commonly light houswives; such as are alluded to, Prov. 9.13.27. and the words following here, ver. 17. where it is faid, She fhall 18turn to her hire, and commit fornication with the Kingdomes of the world, doe evidently thew, that no other then an harlot is here meant: not as if merchandize were a diffionest or unwarrantable courfe, being of great and necellary use, and in the word of God not approved only but commended too, Pl. 107.23. Pro. 31.14,24. Eccl. 11.1,2. which last place feems to intend traffick, rather then almf deeds : but the one is refembled by the other, because gain is intended as well in the one as in the other; and in regard of fome fimilitude, or proportion, in some particular that the one hash to the other, are good and commendable exercises, sometime compared unto couries evil and unjust. See Luk. 16.1.8,9. for I fear thay go again a little too far, who would have the comparison here in-tended, to hold in regard of the traud and imquity; or, the tricks and devices found and used commonly in either; where the mammon of iniquity, Luk, 16.9. as alto that of Solomon, Prov. 20, 14. and that of Sirachs fon, Ecclus, 27.2. Howbeit, as those straighten it too much, that contine it to the narrow limits of Judah and Ifrael, to they over-widen it much more, that would extend it to the general day of doom, which many pallages in it do clearly controll. The whole Sermon reacheth unto the end of the 27. Chapter.

as with the buyer, fo with the feller Or, fo with the buyer, as with the feller; for the very same particle is in either member, and admitteth either notion here rather thus, then as before ; because in the three former branches, the better condition, and more likely to do well, to wit, the Prince, the Miller, the Miller, were in the latter place; whereas in these three latter branches, the better estate, to wit, the buyer, the lender, the letter, are in the former. He that by pur chafing made account to mend his effate, thall be in no better plicht. in regard thereof, then he that hath made it away, and embezilled thereby his means. See Fzek.7. 12, 13. and fee fomewhat the like, but in another notion, 1 Cor. 7.30.

as with the lender, fo with the borrower :] Oc, fo with the lender, as with the borrower; neither having any furcty of what he owns or what he owes; nor any manmore of what is in his own hands then of what is in anothers, Of the use of the words, see Pl.372.1 & Pro. 22.7.

as with the taker of ufury, fo with the giver of ufury to bim.] Or rather, fo with the letter on usury, as with him, to whom he letteth on usury; for so it is, word for word in the text: 4 salso, Deut 24.11 the man to whom thou lendelt, or lettelt; for, the word is in either place the fame, and the word both here and there used, is of a large extent, comprehending as wel free lending, as letting upon confide ration, as the Greek Jarsi (esp., which it answereth unto, also some-time doth. See Lu. 6.34, 35. The Heb. Comenters therefore to diffinguish this branch from the former , say some of them, that the former spake of those that let, or lent out mony this latter of those that tent, or let out victual, or any fuch other thing, Deur. 23, 19, others of them, that the former is meant of fuch as lend what they have freely: them, triat the former is meant or men as peun, as Deu. 2 + . 11, where pet no confideration is mentioned, or necessarily implyed; but the contrary rather: for it speaketh of a brother, of whom they were forbidden to take interest, Deut. 23. 19. so that the pawn seems to be there intended only as fecurity for the principal. Howfoever, this latter diffication here feems more probable than the former. But though the parties here and there mentioned, a are for good cause to be diffinguished, yet the particle, or not of similands, is the very same here, that was in all the former branches; and that learned Scholiast was much mistaken (though not the first that here tripped) in supposing the term here to be altered; and the word suffer to be no more here, then (as in other places ore it is) the inne with the Latine ficut, or quemadmodum; the English, as, or, m like manner; whereas indeed it is more then lo, & it is to be taken afunder, as oft elfwhere; the exit felf alone, as in the former branthes, importing as much as he would have figurified by the whole and the latter part, to wit, after, being here a relative diffinct from it, and looking forward, not to the particle next it, but to the pro soun demonstrative, by an elegant redundancie in that language very ulual, subjected in the close of the sentence, the very like construction whereunto is precisely found in that parallel to this, Deur, 24.11, Howbeit herein I concurre with that learned Writer. for the reason before rendred (which yet by him is here croffed) that albeit in the three first branches , the former particle is to be that above in the time in transitions 3, we cannot prove the rendered feets, as 5, the later, [16, 5] a and that therefore in the former part of the verle, the fentence runs aright, as our verifion hand, is with the people, [5] with the Prince; and fo forward; is ver in the three latter branches, (and not in the two latter only as he ground ing upon his fore-mentioned mistake would have it) the text ought recher to be rendred, so with the buyer, as with the seller; and so forward; as if he had said, as the Prince, or Priest, shall sare no better then the common sort of people; the Master or Mistris then the Man or Maid-fervant; fo it thall be no better with the richer fort, with well-monied men (fuch as use to parchase,, are able to lend, and are wont to let money out toule) then with those of poor and meaner condition, such as are fain to sell, and are con-strained of to borrow, or to take money up at interest: either of which to be enforced unto, is made a note of penury, Deut. 15.6-8. & 28.12, Nehem. 5.3.4. Prov. 22.2,7. & 29.13. Thus a miftake hath yet ministred an hint of that, which gives some light for the right conceiving of the text. Nor were the miffake so much to be regarded, but that it hath bred a nother more material, as one crrour usually begetteth another. As therefore there was before obction of this branch from the former; to is there no less variance among them about the flating of the two terms used in this beanch. For one of them milled by that former millake, would have by the former term here used, to wit, nosh to be under stood, the taker up of money at interest, or the borrower; and by the latter term, to wit, noffice ho, the letter out, or, the lender, therein controlling another that had gone before him, and went a diverte way; and with him concur fome great Mafters in that language, as also some late Interpreters of prime note, and the Chaldre, and ancient Greek. feem to go the fame way with him. But that ancienter critick by the former term noft h, understandeth the creditor, or letter out, the Many-mifler , as he termedition ; and by the latter, after nofbeh ho, that is, he to whom he letteth out, or, lendeth, the debior, the taker up, or the borrower; and in his steps tread most of the Latine, and all our English vertions ; as also the order of the terms in the former branch pleads for it : where the loader standeth before the borrower, as the letter here before the taker; the creditor in either before the debtor; and the conflant use otthe word nofach, never found uled any otherwise then for one that lendeth, or letteth out, doth abundantly confirm it. See Exod. 22.25. Deut. 24.11. 2 King. 4.1. Pf. 109.11. not doth the word it felf taken apart by it felf, fignifie any other thing in the one member then it doth in the other; but the felt-fame thing in both : Howbelt, the words taken intirely together, as they make up the latter member of the fentence, he whom he letteth to him, as Deut 24.11. the most whom thou lendest to him; (for fo in either place the words expresly are) they doe evidently defign the debtor; all the difference between thefe two parallel places is, that there is a defect of the antecedent (fuch as is found, Ruth 1.16,17 & 2.9. 1 King. 18.12.) in the one, which is expreshed in the other. But to lastly, 1 San. 22.2. where it is said, as our vertion rendresh is , every one that was in debt; it is in the original, word for word, every one whom a leader, or letter, was to h m (the redundancy before observed, there also found) that is , every one that had a creditor, or every one that was indebted. And thus much for the precise notion of the terms. Now from hence some observe, that those of the ten Tribes (whom alone they suppose this prophecy to concern) had not regarded to observe the Law of God , by Moses cnacked against taking usury of their brethren, Exod 21.25.Lev.25.

36,37. Deut.23.19,20. as also many other of Gods Ordinances, v. S. And it is true indeed, that not they alone, but the Jews also were 34. 8-11. But this Prophecy, though it concern the Ifraclites a-mong others, yet it respects other Nations besides them, as was before faid: nor is this here mentioned, more then any of the former, as a matter of iniquity, but as a note of some mens more plentiful effate then others, and an occasion of their commerce and dealing with others, usually of meaner and lower condition, with gain and advantage to themselves; notwithstanding which, yet they should be no more secured in these distracted times, then the poorest of thefe they dealt with. See Jer. 15.10.

V. 5. The earth alfo is defiled under the Inhabitants thereof | A reafon of the former denunciation is here rendred, why God was re-folved thus to proceed against the world, and the people thereof; to wit, in regard of their fins, and grievous transgreffious, whereby both those other nations, and his own people, violating as well the Laws of Nature in general, as his special infiltutions and ordinances, had defiled and polluted the places of their respective abode, which should, therefore, cast them up, and spue them out, as some impure and loathfome matter, that made them fick, and qualmy, untill they were rid and cafed of them, Levit. 18. 25 -- 28. But here a rub would be removed, cast in our way by a late Interpreter of prime note, that may else impeach the free progress of this exposition; the rather, because our lace Translaters have afforded it admission into the margent, though not into the text. This learned man, therefore, renders the word here, not, they shall be Jeanned man, unerctore, remoters the word flete, not, stuby float to enjited, but, the plant to milited, or, found wanting; that is, for many dates, or, for a long time, they fluid into the extant, as he expeanded it, And it is true, indeed, that fitch a notion the word here tied fometime hath; it fighthieth, fifth, and properly, to wife, or to frest; and in the mextylace, upon fluvey, to take notice of the absence, or prefence of those things; or perfons, that come within compals of the inveyand or dipple of them, this way, or that way, for evil, or to good. CHAP. XXV.

Ver. 1. Lord thou art my God, I will exalt thee, I will praife thy name] The Propher in the former part of this Chapter, as one transported with the apprehension of the transcendent majesty, might, and mercy of God manifested, in the just execution of his vengeance on the insolent and obstinate wicked of all forts, or in sengeance of the motern and outside wiesce of all forts, and the gracious protections and deliverances of his poor distracted, despited, and dejected people, and with the confideration of his admirable and unexpressible wildom, most clearly revealing it felt in the passages of his providence concerning either, doth abruptly break off the file of his prophetical discourse, and falleth into a solemn celebration & praising of God for these his wonderful works, as well of judgment as of mercy; and in the latter part, fo returneth again to his former discourse, that it is not casse to design or six the precise lifts or limits of either, they are so artificially interwoven the one with the other.

O Lord thou art my God] Some suppose this sacred hymn to be conceived, as in the person of the Elders, or Ancients, mentioned, chap. 24.23. and fo thole words wanting to be supplyed, In that day it foull be faid, as ver. 9. or, In that day shall this fong be fung, as chap, 26, 1. But I conceive it rather to be an expression of the Prophets own affection and disposition, much taken with the mercy and goodness of God in these counsels and courses of his shewed to his people; fuch like holy breathings may be observed to break oft from Gods children amidst other their discourses, Jerem. 10.7.& 16.19.

They, though great ones, that would have it to fignific, to answer, and thus render the words which (to wit, heat) anfwered (or was fit for) the branch of the violent, feen to writte and wring the test too hard. For I spare to spend further words, in relating how strangely the Rabbines, some of them, and some of ours alo, tear it afunder : Onely I will adjoyn what a learned late Writer fuggeffeth, He would have the text thus rendred; As the heat in a dry place, is the tumult of Reangers, the heat wilt thou bring down with the (bade of a thick cloud the cutting off of the terrible ones that tellifie it. He conteffeth, the paules, as they are in the text go a-gainft him: but he denieth it necessary to stick constantly to them: and yot when they afford a plain and fair fenfe, I thould not lightly depart from them.

his hands: and because the same word applyed to waters, seems to import fluces, or drims, that keep in water; (to they render it Gen. 7.11. & 8.1.) fome would have the word, here used, fo also to fign.fi.; and translate it, with the cataracts, or fluces, of his hands: Which, to me, feems to found very harsh, and not to fuit well with the context; the use of such fluces, or dams, being to keep in, and to keep up water contrary to what is here intimated, of depreshing and bringing down. The word, therefore, being no where elfe read, I concur with those Jewish Criticks, who inform us, that the word here fignifieth not the arm, as many of our Interpreters miftake them; nor the cubite, as some other; but the clbow, or, more largely, the nooks, or bendings of the arm, whether at elbow, or arm-hole; for the word feems indifferent to either, coming from a root, that fignifieth to lye in wait:as in nookes and corners, both men or beafts ule to do, Pfal. 10.9,10, and fo it forts well with the similitude of a swimmer and may be rendred, with the elbows, or arm-holes; and confequently, more familiarly and plainly, with the bowings, or bendings, that is with the motions, or, fire the (as both the Chaldee, and old Latine interpret it, lot his arms. The only difficulty is, how it should be fitly faid, with the clooms, or arm holes, of his hands: but that is casily fol ved:for in those places where the word is used, whereby they interpret this, and is generally acknowledged to fignific one of thefe twain, the very lame phrase is used, the closurs, or arm-holes of the hands, Ezck, 13, 18, Jer, 38, 12. In which places, the learned also obferve that band, are put for arms : and fo the old Greek Translators took the word, Pial. 1 28.2. when they rendred it by a word, that fign.fies the fore part of the arm, next the hand, or wrift; which word n.hies the tore part of the arm, next the nand, or writt; whilet word, allo, uftially fignifying fruit, gave, by miffack, occasion of that ab furd translation, in the old Latine; of the labour of the fruit fluit thou ext: out of which, the ancients pick mifteries. Thus have I endeavoured to clear this dark and difficult paffage; which, as mandavioured to clear this dark and difficult paffage; ny, on the one fide. Brain and Bray in; fo, as many on the other fide, flight and let fl.p.a. if nothing were dim, or doubtful in it. I fhall add onely, what I find fince this note here inferred, in the possibumous Annorations of a famous Writer very deeply feen in the Oriental languages. He would not have the word here questioned, to be applyed to God. His reason is, because the particle here uffilering it in, is (as he supposeth) never taken in an instrumental notion. Yet so is it found used, Esh. 9. 25. He commanded by letters. The word, for the sense and the of it, here, he interpreteth it much in effect, as I do; but fetcheth it about another way, and applieth it to Moab. For because he findeth in Schindlers Penteglotte, that with the Rubbines, arboth, (the word here used) or arubbath rather, (for to arubbath Schimdler subjoyneth it,) of the feet, doth fignific the feetets, or feeret parts of the body, and that a word in Arabick, fome-what neer it, is used for the same; he thence conceiveth the term to come from a root, that hath a notion of muchaefs in it; (the fi ft letter in it, as in arbeb for a locust, being not radical, but additional, and to signific those parts of the feet, that have most flesh on them; to wit, the thighes: and confequently, by proportion the arboth, or arubboth of the hands, to be those parts thereof, that are most fleshy and brawnie, to wit, those which the Latines call luccrtus, the aims. So, because mans strength consisteth most in ly used in some forms, for those parts, not with the Rabbines onely but in the sacred Scriptures, as I have thewed on chapter 6, 2, 8 7.20. I conceive that tho'e Jewith Mafters, where they apply this crubboth to the word feet fouled, understand nothing thereby, but forming, the bolts, or fifter of or in those parts taken from that acception of the word, whereby it is in Scripture uted for facth but is in the wall and healt-file, windows, and Josephout's or in the roof and house too, Jovers and the like, whereby light infacth, and is let in jinkee; lineth, and is let out, a Singe, 7,2,1,9,1401.3.3. 3. Sec on chap. 24.17. & 60.8 and according to this notion, there is no fit appliest on of it unto the hands. Befides, should it be re-ferred to that other root, as he would have it, I should rather deen the term given to those parts in a notion of multiplication t! en of muchneffe; because they are instruments of p.opagation, whereof that root is most frequently used, Gen. 1.22,23. & 9.1, 7, 8. V.19. Thy dead men fhall rife] Hitherto was described the calanitous condition of Gods people, under Gods chafting hand; to-gether with their utter inability of doing ought that might free them from the same. Now in this laft passage, wherewith the Propher shuts up this Plain, is subjoyned a gracious promise, or profession of consident assurance, concerning the power of God, to be shewed in reviving, and raising them from that their extream, low, feeble, and forlorn condition, wherein they feemed to be no better then men dead and buried, and even dissolved into dust. Now this is, by mon; conceived here to be delivered to Gods people, by the Prophet, as a promise from God, whereby they might be supported in that their helples, and as it might feem, hopelels effate, affuring themselves of a comfortable iffue of their present afflictions, and of certain deliverance out of that their diffrested condition, though, in the eyes of flesh and blood, it might ferm a thing utterly impossible, Ezek 33.3,11.
